THE SASKATCHEWAN YEAR BOOK

The Voice of Asia

A WARNING

"Canada will have to solve for the salvation of man the most difficult of all problems, the race problem, which has become insistent with the close contact of communities that had their isolation for centuries in their geographical and cultural exclusiveness. She will have to reconcile the efficiency of the machine with the creative genius of man which must build its paradise of self-expression, reconcile science with religion, individual right with the social obligation that it must acknowledge."

—TAGORE.

MESSAGE TO THE EMPIRE

GEORGE REX

"Looking back on my long illness and recovery my heart is full of thankfulness of a far deeper origin than any mere sense of relief. I have been brought back from the danger and weariness of the past few months by the wonderful skill and devotion of my doctors, surgeons and nurses and health has come to me from another source of strength.

"As month after month went by I learned of the widespread and loving solicitude with which the Queen and I have been surrounded. I was able to picture for myself the crowds of friends waiting and watching at my gates, and to think of the still greater number of those, who throughout the Empire, were remembering me with prayers and good wishes.

"The realization of this has been among the most vivid experiences of my life. It is encouragement beyond description to feel my constant and earnest desire has been granted—my desire to gain the confidence and affection of my people.

"My thoughts have carried me even further. I cannot dwell on the generous sympathy shown me by unknown friends in many other countries without a new and moving hope. I long to believe it is possible that experiences such as mine may soon appear no longer exceptional; when the national anxieties of all peoples of the world shall be felt as a common source of human sympathy and a common claim on human friendship.

"I am not yet able to bear the strain of a public ceremony, but I am looking forward to some appointed day for joining my people at home and overseas in thanking God not only for my own recovery, but for the new evidences of growing kindness significant of the true nature of men and nations. In the meantime, I hope this message may reach all those even in the most remote corners of the world, from whom I have received words of sympathy and good will."

George V.

SASKATCHEWAN INDIANS ASK MEMORIAL

In solemn pow-wow the assembled Chiefs of Saskatchewan Indians last August urged the erection during the World Congress, Regina, 1932, of a monument to Sitting Bull (Siour), Piapot (Cree), Night Hawk (Saulteaux) and Sieur de La Verendrye, discoverer of the Western Prairies. Colonel Jas. McCra, Mayor of Regina, accepted the challenge, naming a committee consisting of Indian Commissioner W. M. Graham, Norman McKenzie, Col. Jas. Cross, Hon. J. McKay, Father Athol Murray to co-operate with himself in its achievement. The scene is at the foot of the Hugonard Monument, Lebret.

"The Paleface loves the haunted lakes
they say,
And journeys far to watch their beauty
Spread before his vision . . .

(Legend of Qu'Appelle Lakes)

They but forget we Indians owned the land
From ocean to ocean; that they stand
Upon a soil that centuries ago
Was our sole kingdom and our right alone.

(The cry of an Indian wife.)

SASKATCHEWAN'S MASTERPIECE OF THE YEAR.

The study of Archbishop Mathieu by James Henderson, F.S.A.A., renders well the Lanfranc-like ruggedness and Mercier-like gentleness of this prelate whom E. W. Beatty describes as "incalculably the greatest of living Canadians".

NORMAN McKENZIE, Esq., K.C., Regina.

Member of the Board of Trustees of the National Art Gallery, Ottawa. Within the past year Mr. McKenzie inaugurated the Saskatchewan Art Association. He likewise sponsored the above painting of Archbishop Mathieu.

RED CROSS OUTPOST HOSPITAL AT NIPAWIN

There were 1813 patients cared for and 398 infants born in them in comfort and safety.

These two young girls were helpless from disease and seriously crippled six years ago.

They required over a year in hospital, as Junior Red Cross Patients. They are now in excellent health and well along with their education.

They represent over 2000 young citizens of Saskatchewan who have received similar aid during the past eight years.

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS

For a period of one month a motorist who is a resident of the United States may bring his car into Canada for touring purposes only and return to the United States either by the port of entry or by any other port, without having to give a bond with the Canadian Customs officials. All that is required is that he fill at the Customs Office on the order, in entering Canada, a form in which particulars are given respecting his car. This form is made out in duplicate: a copy is retained by the Customs officer; the other, retained by the motorist, is to be presented to the Customs officer at the port of exit on leaving Canada.

The motorist should carry with him the automobile registration card identifying his car, as this must be displayed on demand of the Customs officials.

If the tourist intends to keep his car in Canada for longer than one month, it will be necessary for him to provide a bond. Under this bond, he may keep his car in Canada, and use it for touring purposes only, for a period up to six months in one year; but at the expiration of this time no extension or renewal will be permitted.

ACCORDING TO THE UNITED STATES TARIFF REGULATIONS, residents of the United States returning from abroad MAY BRING IN FREE OF DUTY ARTICLES UP TO $100.00 IN VALUE, acquired for personal or household use, or as souvenirs or curios, if not intended for sale. Each member of a family is entitled to the exemption of $100.00. Articles included within such exemption must be declared.

CANADA HAS GREAT THINGS AHEAD

By Sir Henry Thornton

President, Canadian National Railways.

One need not pore over volumes of statistics to learn that Canada is prosperous and that Canadians have every reason for a feeling of optimism in facing the opening of another year.

Throughout Canada, from Atlantic to Pacific, it is but necessary to talk to men in any line of business to become a more confirmed believer in this Dominion than ever before. Throughout the Dominion there is an undoubted feeling of satisfaction with the progress that has been made during the year, and what is perhaps more important, there is a strong determination that such progress will be continued during the year now beginning.

The railways are the arteries through which flows the lifeblood of a nation's commerce, and railway returns are usually accepted as indicative of business conditions in the country which the railways serve. When we consider the operation, during 1928, of the Canadian National system, with its 22,861 miles of line, serving each of the nine provinces, we find that, month by month during 1928 traffic, receipts showed a steady increase over those for the corresponding months of 1927. While complete returns for 1928 are not yet available, net earnings will be more than $50,000,000, a record figure for the system.

This great prosperity on the part of the National system, has, of course, brought a greater measure of prosperity to its army of employees, but it has gone beyond that. In carrying out improvements to roadbed, securing new and improved equipment for the handling of this greater flow of business, and endeavoring in every way to better the facilities which are placed at the disposal of its patrons, the National system has passed along some of this additional prosperity to the steel mills, car construction plants, and other industries which are interested in the supplying of railway needs, and this, in turn, has given additional work and prosperity to another army of workers not on the payroll of the Canadian National system, but employed by industries whose payrolls are increased by the business which increased railway returns enable us to pass along.

As we enter upon this new year Canadian mills and factories are busy. Their employees are sharing in the prosperity which comes from that increased capacity, and as their spending power is increased so the wholesaler and the retailer all along the line prosper. There would seem to be no reason to anticipate a diminution of this activity, and I think we Canadians can wish each other "Happy and Prosperous New Year" with knowledge that we are giving voice to a wish which has every likelihood of coming true for each of us.

"CANADA IS SOUND"

By E. W. Beatty, K. C.

President, Canadian Pacific Railways.

The steady progress in general business and financial conditions of the past four or five years in review gives Canadians good reason to look forward with confidence in the future prosperity of their country. So long as the resources of our country are exploited and managed as they have been of recent years, with thought to conservation and the needs and requirements of the future, our prosperity is assured. The days of pioneering are not yet passed, and there has been practically no field of activity which has not made vast strides during the past few years, a development which has been particularly notable in 1928. I have, on more than one occasion, suggested that Canadians might well pay more attention to investment in Canadian corporations which have proved their value to the country, such as the Canadian Pacific Railway, and I am more than ever convinced that this is a wise policy.

1928 was Canada's largest crop year and followed a series of heavy yields. As records of crop production and movement were broken, mineral production likewise, broke records. Other activities kept pace with the basic industries. There is at present a minimum of unemployment. Agriculture is becoming more diversified, so that whatever climatic conditions obtain in the future, unexpected losses in this field will not disturb the financial equilibrium of the country. Thus the impetus which commerce and industry are at present receiving is rich with promise of continued progress which will be all the more sustained and fruitful if speculative activities are not allowed to interrupt their well ordered course.

RAILWAY EXPANSION

By CHARLES A. DUNNING.

The year has been one of great business expansion, and, if evidence were required that the railways accurately reflect the commercial progress of the country, it is supplied, so far as the Canadian National is concerned, in the fact that its volume of freight traffic established a new high record in each of the 11 months under consideration, with the single exception of April, and the business of that month was only exceeded by that of April 1923. There is evidence here, not only of improved business conditions, but of increasing popularity and prestige of the Canadian National Railways based upon a growing efficiency of operation and constantly improving service.

When the requirements of the Canadian National Railways were before Parliament last session, it was estimated that the operating resources of the railway would provide 41 of the 80 millions necessary to see the National system through the year that is now drawing to a close. During the eleven months of the year for which final figures are available, as this is written, the net revenues from operation, exclusive of the eastern lines, had amounted to $53,549,291.28 compared with $41,459,707.24 for the 11 months ended November 30, 1927. This increase of 12 millions in gross revenue means a net improvement, after all charges of $6,849,324 for the 11 months period. During December the earnings of the railway have been well maintained, and it is quite apparent now that the result of 1928 operations as a whole will exceed the most sanguine expectations of the management.

Good Progress on Bay Route

Good progress has been made on the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway and the track has now reached mile 462, within 48 miles of Churchill. The country remaining to be negotiated presents considerable difficulty from the construction standpoint, and to expediate the work it is proposed, as soon as the rigour of winter is passed, to proceed with track laying on the frozen surface, and later, when the thaw comes, this trackage will be brought into usable condition by lifting with train-fill and ballast. This is the method which was so successfully used in connection with the 87 mile branch built into Flin Flon during the past year, which line will, it is expected, be extended an additional 40 or 60 miles to the Sherritt-Gordon properties, and a contract at present being arranged by the Canadian National management.

Although it has been necessary, owing to the lack of overland railway connection, to proceed with the work of developing a port at Churchill from the sea, and very satisfactory progress was made on that work also during the recent season of navigation. The expenditure on the Hudson Bay Railway to date has amounted to $23,615,530, and on the harbor development at Churchill, $3,468,924.

Much New Railway Mileage

Ten years ago, it was thought that for many years to come there would be no further railway construction, but since 1918 about 2,500 miles of additional railway have been put into operation by Canadian railways. Had this been transcontinental instead of branch line mileage, it would be equal to a continuous line from North Bay to Vancouver. During the eleven months of the present year, the Canadian National alone graded 426 miles of new line, laid track to the extent of 460 miles, and completed ballasting on 229 miles. This includes the season's work on the Hudson Bay and Flin Flon lines, aside from which, the bulk of branch line construction was in the province of Saskatchewan whose field crops this year are estimated at a valuation of $309,538,000 out of a total for all Canada of $1,051,043,000.

Satisfactory Decade in Railway History.

Ten years have elapsed since the Government found it necessary to take over the Canadian Northern Railway. In 1919, the Grand Trunk Pacific failure brought that road under government operation in receivership. In 1920, the Gouvernement made the acquisition arrangement with the Grand Trunk that was completed in 1921. During those three years there were heavy operating deficits. In the succeeding seven years, there have been operating surplusses that have mounted steadily, and which, in 1926 and again this year, have been more than sufficient to meet the interest charges on the funded debt in the hands of the public. In the ten years in question, the operating surplusses will have exceeded the operating deficits by more than 150 millions. Ten years ago, this would scarcely have been deemed possible. That it has been possible is due to three things—to competent management, to the provision of moneys necessary to bring the railway properties to their present high state of efficiency, and, of course, to improved business conditions.

During the nine years ended March 31st last, new funds amounting to 878 millions were provided to meet Canadian National requirements. Of that sum, 206 millions went to meet income deficits, 297 millions to retire maturing obligations, and 375 millions for additions and betterments. Of the 878 millions, 429 were provided by cash loans from the Dominion, and 449 by bond and note issues by the Railway, mostly guaranteed. This does not mean that the debt of the Canadian National was increased to the extent of 878 millions over the nine year period. Almost 300 millions of that sum went to meet maturing obligations already forming part of the debt of the railways. In that way one obligation merely cancelled another, and the increase in debt was, therefore, 581 millions. But of that increase no less than 375 millions went into the improvement of the property. Now that the latter has been brought to its present high standard, capital requirements will tend to grow less, but it has been the provision of these monies, and the wise use that has been made of them, that has made it possible for the Canadian National to achieve its present proud position.

The North

Where is the old road leading?
To the North, to the North! it says;
What are the signposts reading?
To the North, to the North! they blaze;
To the wilds in the autumn weather,
Where the moors lie red with the heather.
And the white mist curls like a feather
Through the cool September days.

Of what is the dreamer dreaming?
The kiss of the Northern rain;
The curve of a dark shore gleaming,
The spell of a mountain chain;
Of work that is left, uncaring,
The dust and the cobwebs sharing,
And one by a North road faring
Not soon to return again.

CANADA OUTSTRIPS GREAT BRITAIN IN TRADE WITH U.S.

The growing importance of trade between Canada and the United States is emphasized in comments from various leading journals collected by The Literary Digest, as follows:

"A momentous milestone in the history of our foreign trade," is the way Canada's recent advance to the position of the United States' best customer is characterized by a Department of Commerce official. Figures for the last fiscal year indicate that Canada now buys more goods from us, and sells more to us, than any other nation. And at the same time the United States has displaced Great Britain as Canada's best customer. Great as is the economic significance of this development, its sentimental significance is even greater, remarks the Detroit Free Press: "the United States has just so much to sell, and to the economist it is immaterial whether it sells it to Canada or to Cochin-China; but to the man in the street the knowledge that our closest neighbor is also our best customer conveys the same comfortable feeling that the storekeeper experiences when he enjoys the patronage of his townspeople." It is deemed remarkable by many of our newspapers that such a position in world trade should be attained by the Dominion with its less than 10,000,000 population, and Canada is widely congratulated on this sign of rapidly growing prosperity. During the first six months of 1928 Canada led Great Britain in trade with the United States by more than $100,000,000, and the total business between the two countries was $661,000,000. The Foreign Commerce Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has issued a statement commenting on these figures, as follows:

"Canada, with a population of about 9,400,000—somewhat less than that of the metropolitan district of the city of New York—in the first half of this year purchased American goods amounting to $426,199,000, or 18.1 percent, of our total exports, thus becoming by far our most important market, having outdistanced her nearest competitor, the United Kingdom, by nearly $45,000,000.

"Our Canadian neighbors, in displacing the United Kingdom as our best customer, increased their purchases nearly 6½ percent, buying $45.70 worth of American goods, per capita in the 6 months. Germany, with a decrease of $4,541,000, or 2.2 percent, took $205,769,000 worth of American goods, retaining the place which it held for the same period of last year as our third-best customer.

"Canada, our chief source of supply, furnished us with $231,852,000 worth of goods, a gain of $7,145,000, or 3.2 percent over our imports from her for the same period of 1927.

"Purchases from Japan amounted to $184,126,000, showing a falling off of $11,262,000, or 5.8 percent. Receipts from the United Kingdom increased from $169,804,000 to $175,820,000 a gain of $6,016,000, or 3.5 percent.

And not only in those six months, but in the entire fiscal year ending last June, Canada stood ahead of Great Britain with total purchases of $862,000,000 during the twelve months, as compared with $809,000,000 bought from the United States by Great Britain. Summarizing Department of Commerce figures for the fiscal year, a bulletin of the brokerage house of Dominick and Dominick notes these further facts:

Newsprint Most Important

"At the same time Canada sells to this country approximately half a billion dollars of goods each year, of which the most important item is newsprint paper, amounting to about $120,000,000.

"Canada has thus an unfavorable balance of trade with the United States of over $300,000,000. This is largely offset by the revenue from American tourists. Tourist traffic has increased each year, and in 1927 accounted for an expenditure of some $275,000,000. It is expected that this revenue will be augmented in 1928 to a total of around $400,000,000.

"Improvements in both industry and agriculture have contributed to the Dominion's larger volume of trade. Canada has recovered from the post-war depression of agriculture more rapidly than the United States, and income from farm products reached a new record last year of $1,735,000,000. The present era of progress in the country as a whole can be dated from 1924, and the expansion that has taken place since then is indicated by the following index figures for 1928, based on an index of 100 for 1919-1924: total volume of business 162, lumber 180, manufacturing 175, car-loadings 130, demand deposits 130, time deposits 125, investment holdings 120."

Certain obvious reasons are found by this authority for the close economic relationship between the United States and Canada:

"The United States has in its neighbor a comparatively undeveloped country, with enormous resources of waterpower and vast supplies of raw material. The gradual transference of the pulp and paper industry from the United States to Canada is an indication of the trend of certain industries which require cheap power and proximity to raw-material supplies."

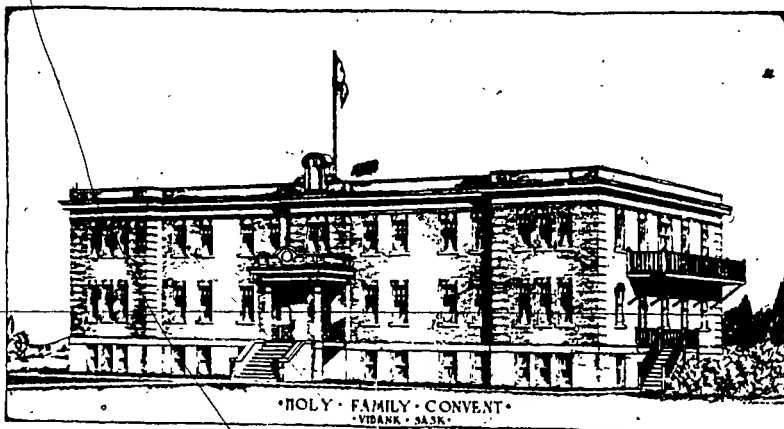

Conflicting Claims Debated

The fact that Canada buys more from the United States than she sells to us gives rise, as the Toronto Globe notes, to "conflicting claims of party leaders as to the economic wisdom of tariff and trade conditions" in the Dominion, and these claims are being debated in the Canadian press. On this side of the border the papers generally are content with congratulating Canada and with drawing certain general lessons from the increasing closeness of economic relations between the two great nations of English-speaking North America. "The Great American Object Lesson" is the title of a leading editorial in the Boston Christian Science Monitor, which reads in part as follows:

"The relations existing between Canada and the American Union stand as the finest example extant of the way in which neighboring States should meet and discharge their neighborly functions. The countries of Europe, walled in by forts, their coasts guarded by cruising battleships, their garrisons ever on the alert for frontier incidents, may well look with wonder, and should look with envy upon the more than 3,000 miles of frontier in North America without a fort, and the almost 2,000 miles of natural boundaries by lake and navigable water on which no war-ship worthy of the name floats. This idyllic situation is accepted by both Canadians and Americans in the most matter-of-fact way. And just as trade flows with nothing save fiscal barriers to impede its full interchange, so too, friendship and respect are freely interchanged between the two nations. The lesser one has no fear of absorption; the greater one expresses the sincere hope that Canada may yet find ways of filling her still undeveloped country with industries, progressive citizens.

"It would seem to the reflective individual that this harmonious condition existing between two great peoples might well serve as an object lesson to those foreign countries that have not yet abandoned the belief that security can only be obtained at the price of heavy battleships. The situation is not in the slightest degree affected by the fact that back of Canada stands the British Empire with its great navy and enormous man-power. The relations between Canada and the United States are never influenced on the one side of the line by dread of British power, or on the other by the feeling that the British navy stands prepared to back the Dominion in case of need. Those relations are based upon, and controlled by, the sincere and general friendship between two peoples who have in the main the same social ideals, the same ambitions, the same general habits. Had there been cultivated during the last 200 years or so in these two countries a sentiment of narrow nationalism and mutual suspicion, as there has been for centuries - between France and Germany, or Italy and Austria, perhaps the pacific state now maintained might not have been so easy of establishment. But it does exist, and so many furnish an object lesson to those European countries which at heart desire enduring peace, but thus far have hesitated to take the steps by which alone it can be secured, namely, the renunciation of military and naval power, and the acceptance of systems of arbitration and conciliation as the essential bases of continued international harmony."

"The year which has passed carried with it a story of development and improvement which we trust ushered in a period of advancement toward the establishment of a sound industrial and agricultural future.

"It is our wish for the province that the year 1929 will see a continuation of that growth along sane lines, laying the foundations sure for a home-loving people."

A SAGA OF EMPIRE INTEGRITY

By LORD MELCHETT

(formerly Sir Alfred Mond, statesman and industrialist)

There never was in the history of the world an economic complex so large in area, so great in population, so furnished with natural resources of all kinds, endowed with all climates, with such a future for development and expansion and with such potentialities for future generations to enjoy as in the British Commonwealth of Nations. If they are allowed to proceed separately, individually, I have no doubt divergencies will gradually appear. If linked together in one economic whole, they would form a most powerful unit, the most potent instrument for good that the civilized world has ever seen.

The idea of a British Empire with no kind of hampering barriers between its members with a trade secured against the rest of the world, and with rationalized industries, may seem a fantastic dream, and in its entirety may never completely come about. You cannot deny these great countries the desire and wish to develop themselves industrially as well as agriculturally, but I do believe that it is not beyond the bounds of human endeavor to arrive at arrangements between us in which all the resources of the Empire will be used for the best advantage of all, and when arrangements could be made to encourage the production of commodities of the most suitable character by which the increases and developments of old and new industries could be co-ordinated.

I wish many of the resources which are lacking development today owing to want of finance and want of population could be aided and assisted by the mother country. The magnitude and complexities of the problem should not prevent us from going ahead. I have found much more sympathy, understanding as I do the leading men of the dominions, than you would anticipate.

I think there is a greater feeling of union between us than there ever was. The echoes of the Great War have not yet entirely died out. There are still many millions who remember the great united effort, the great united sacrifice, the great united victory the British Empire achieved. The echoes, however, are becoming dimmer; time will blunt the memories of our great joint enterprise. We have already waited too long; we should not wait any longer. A great conference should be called at the earliest opportunity. Leading men in industry, agriculture and economic life of those countries should investigate and probe this matter to the bottom. If the will is there, as I believe it is, the solution should be found.

Let us prosecute unceasingly and unselfishly, with no feeling for ourselves, but with an earnest wish and an ardent hope that the great heritage which has been handed down to us, and for which so many now lie on the fields of Flanders, the rocks of Gallipoli, and the burning sands of Mesopotamia, may be handed safely down to their children and their children's children. Let us hope, too, that the British Empire, the greatest instrument of peace the world has ever known, shall continue to grow in strength, not only for the benefit of its own inhabitants, but for the benefit of the whole human race.

THE KING'S LAST VISIT TO CANADA

The pageantry of Quebec's great fete in 1908 was of historic significance. It was not merely a masque or rehearsal of the romantic past,—it was actual. It was the first genuine "Get-together" of the British Empire, with French-Canada playing host.

Earl Grey it was who grasped the idea in its magnitude. The stirring grandeur of the primeval struggles of America, Champlain's unwavering faith, the courage of his heroic successors, all the old-world dignity of the XVII century formed a wonderful "mise-en-scene" for the affirming of the new order. Ancient racial elements harmonising, in conscious freedom, into one great British People loyal to God and King—that was the world import of the Quebec Tercentenary.

The British Fleet at anchor in the shadow of the Quebec Citadel, the presence of our present most gracious Sovereign, with His Grace the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Roberts, Lord Lovat and many other distinguished Britishers from over-seas was the expression of the British Empire finding itself "chez soi". For such an occasion more than ordinary forces were needed to interpret the spirit of Canada. The Canadians who did this thing were no ordinary men. They were men of vision and men of will, understanding the possibilities of the future, equally wise to use the opportunities of the present. Outstanding among them were Sir Wilfrid. Laurier and Mgr. O. E. Mathieu. Photography has preserved a record of this wonderful manifestation of British kinship and geniality; and Canada will long cherish the memory of the Royal banquet at Petit-Can where Mgr Mathieu with all the rare gifts of graciousness which are his, was host to the most distinguished gathering yet witnessed in America. France was there,—so too the United States—in the person of Vice-President Fairbanks;—but the all-significant thing was that the British Empire was there, with its King and its representatives from South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and Newfoundland.

When I think of the great work of Mgr. Mathieu in Western Canada, my mind often carries back to the Quebec of 1908 and to the rugged idealism of Earl Grey then such an inspiration to us all. Perhaps the story is told somehow by the flowers on the Battlefield Park which annually spell out in their loveliness the Grey legend: "De bon vouloir servir Dieu et le Roy."

That certainly has been the spirit of Mgr. Mathieu.

A CHALLENGE TO YOUTH

By Sir James Barrie.

Address of Sir James Barrie to the University of St. Andrews, Scotland.

My own theme is Courage, as you should use it in the great fight that seems to me to be coming between Youth and their Betters; by Youth, meaning, of course, you, and by your Betters us. I want you to take up this position—that Youth have for too long left exclusively in our hands the decisions in national matters that are more vital to them than to us. Things about the next war, for instance, and why the last one ever had a beginning. That the time has arrived for Youth to demand a partnership.

Your Betters had no share in the immediate cause of the war—we know what nation has that blot to wipe out; but for fifty years or so we heeded not the rumblings of the distant drum—I don't mean by lack of military preparations—and when war did come, we told Youth, who had to get us out of it, tall tales of what really was and the clever beds it would lead to.

WE WERE IGNORANT

We were not meaning to deceive; most of us were as honorable and as ignorant as the Youth themselves, but that does not acquit us of stupidity and jealousy, the two black spots in human nature which, more than love of money, are at the root of all evil. If you prefer to leave things as they are we shall probably fail you again. Don't be too sure that we have learned our lesson and are not at this very moment doddering down some brimstone path.

I am far from implying that even worse things than war may not come to a state. But if you must be in the struggle, the more reason you should know why, before it begins, and have a say in the decision whether it is to begin. The Youth who went to the war had no such knowledge, no such say; I am sure the survivors want you to be wiser than they were, and are certainly determined to be wiser themselves next time.

MORAL CURRENCY

Go through life without ever ascribing to your opponents motives meaner than your own. Nothing so lowers the moral currency. Give it up and be great. . . .

The spring of the year lies buried in the fields of France and elsewhere. By the time the next eruption comes it may be you who are responsible for it, and your sons who are in the lave. All, perhaps, because this year you let things slide. We have no intention of giving you your share. Look around and see the share Youth has got now that the war is over. You got a handsome share while it lasted.

The League of Nations is a very fine thing, but it can't save you, because it will be run by us. Beware your Betters bringing presents. What is wanted is something run by yourselves.

THE LEAGUE OF YOUTH.

"You have more in common with the youth of other lands than youth and age can ever have with each other; even the hostile countries sent out many a son like ours, from the same sort of homes, the same sort of universities, with the same sort of hearts, who had as little to do as our youth had with the origin of the great adventure. Can we doubt that many of these on both sides who have gone over, and were once opponents, are now friends? You ought to have a League of Youth as your great practical beginning. I sound to myself as if I were advocating a rebellion. Perhaps I may be arrested on leaving the hall. In such a cause I should think that I had at least proved myself worthy to be your rector.

"You will have to work harder than ever, but possibly not so much at the same things—more at modern languages certainly, if you are to discuss that League of Youth with the students of other nations when they come over to St. Andrews for the conference.

Despite the imperfections of your betters, we leave you a great inheritance, for which others will one day call you to account. Remember:

Heaven doth with us as we with torches do,

Not light them for themselves.

SASKATCHEWAN'S GREAT MINING FUTURE

By DAN E. CUSHING

Mining Editor, The Financial Post

Saskatchewan has never been classed with the important mineral provinces of the Dominion, for the reason that heretofore its mineral production has not been of the class that would focus attention on it. It has deposits of clay that easily excel anything else in Canada and its alkali lakes and coal deposits have been coming along nicely.

The past year or so, however, has brought about a change, and indications are that the Province of Saskatchewan will step forward in metallic mining in an important way. Flin Flon mine, being developed by Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., and whose ore body straddles the Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary, has been the means of focusing attention on this section of the country. It is a development that will entail the expenditure of something like $50,000,000 by the time the mine is in production. It means much to both provinces.

Prospecting Pre-Cambrian

Prospecting in the great area of the Pre-Cambrian formation in Northern Saskatchewan has developed as a result of the interest which Flin Flon created and has brought about important discoveries that suggest a bright future for the production of base metals within the province.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the important Flin Flon mining area, and also the area north and west of it, and for that matter the Herb Lake area of Manitoba, where there are some good-looking operations going on, are nearer to Regina as a purchasing centre than to any other. This is due to the fact that the railway lines are more direct and cut off a considerable mileage, saving time and money to the shipper and traveler.

By Brock Serith, Editor, Vancouver
Tribune.

The past season has witnessed a noteworthy advance in the mining development of pre-Cambrian area of Saskatchewan. The progress of the Flin Flon Mines in preparation for the construction of their 3,000-ton smelter, the proving up of huge ore reserves on the Sherritt-Gordon, the expansion in the so-called Central Manitoba field, the construction of the railway to the Flin Flon mine in record time, and the extension of the Hudson Bay line to within striking distance of Churchill, the broad area which was covered in both canoe and aeroplane by the many prospectors who visited this field and the many new discoveries which were made, all bear witness to the substantial foundation which is being gradually and firmly laid for a huge mining industry in this virgin area and to the keen interest taken by the mining public in these northern regions, the resources of which are administered by the Department of the Interior.

Few know Development.

The activities of the Flin Flon and the Sherritt-Gordon mines are now well-known to the general public, but few appreciate what the development of these properties will mean to northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The urban centres alone, which will spring up in the vicinity of these mines in a few years, will rival long-established communities in older parts of the country.

Little, however, is known of the work accomplished by that large army of prospectors who have penetrated this vast country from all sides. Some have traversed by canoe the dangerous rapids of streams never before seen by white man, while others have travelled by aeroplane and made trips which, though not spectacular, almost rival in daring trans-Atlantic flights.

Marketing --

Agricultural Products

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY METHODS ARE OBSOLETE

Successful marketing now calls for organization — organization calls for co-operation, and a co-operative marketing organization expects to be provided with a maximum of good quality products.

NO CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ORGANIZATION CAN WAVE A MAGIC WAND AND PRODUCE CUSTOMERS WILLING TO PAY A FIRST RATE PRICE FOR A FOURTH RATE ARTICLE.

Co-operators therefore, must shoulder full responsibility, and in grain, live stock and other farm products raise the best possible.

IT WILL HELP THE ASSOCIATION AND HELP THE GROWER.

MARKED BY COURTEOUS EFFICIENCY

When you bank with us, we consider it an expression of your confidence in us. It then becomes our purpose to deserve this confidence by more than routine bank service. You are more than just an "account on our books". You become a client with individual needs and personal business problems that call for our closest co-operation.

The size of your account is not a measure of our desire to serve you. We take as much personal interest in the affairs of the small business as we do in the one that carries a big balance with us. Many times in our experience of nearly one hundred years have we seen customers who began with us in a small way develop their business into large and prosperous concerns—a development in which the bank had no small part.

THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA BRANCH NEAR YOU IS QUALIFIED TO GIVE YOU THIS HELPFUL BUSINESS SERVICE

REVELATION

Clyde Robertson

Prairie born, prairie bred,
He never saw the sea;
Or knew he was the child of one
Who sailed the Zuyder Zee.

He never saw the ocean but
Had crossed its mystic deep,
Curled up beneath his mother's heart,
In dreamless un-born sleep.

He wondered why the shifting dunes,
Around their barren home,
Were strangely arabesqued and ridged
As if by circling foam.

He never knew the mile on mile
Of staring sagebrush plain
Once held within its sandy sweep
An ocean's swelling main.

He marvelled why he dreamed of ships,
All drenched with sandy spray,
When sultry night drove down the west
The sun-scorched blistered day.

He pondered why his mother wept,
And why she held him fast,
And crooned a sobbing song of waves
And broken spar and mast.

But when the parched and tortured plain
Called down the twisted cloud
That wrapped them both within its black
And fearful twisted shroud—

He learned the secret of the sands
That flowed the inland sea,
And of his mother's unved love—
Drowned—in the Zuyder Zee.

Endings

God loves the things that love to have an ending:

Oceans that do not roll into the sky,

Hills that are hills, and not ashamed of bending

Theirs heads beneath the thunders that go by.

Meadows that love a boundary-stream's befriending.

Pastures that drift toward a forest nigh,

Waves that have crests, and have no fear of spending

Their final flash of crystal ere they die.

Roads without ending are not roads at all.

Books without covers are for winds to read.

Houses are ruins when they have no wall.

Leaves without blossoms are a useless weed.

Only one moment is all life a flower

After a rain's end, after an April shower

—Daniel Sargent

in "The Atlantic Monthly"

What more stirring than the call of hero-blood across the centuries!
Monseigneur Mathieu has recalled to us the rugged vigour of the Normans.

What a race!

With William and Tancred, we discover them a thousand years ago, in England, in Italy, merging in and making mighty peoples.

With Coeur-de-Lion, Godfroi, Joan d'Arc, we find them the soul of great Crusades. In America we have, in Hufonia, the vine-covered ruins of Fort Ste. Marie, builded by Breboeuf and his fellow-Normans in 1633, a monument to the world's greatest epic of dauntless heroism.
Quebec too has that Norman masonry in the seminary Laval fashioned into its very rock.

And now in the Western prairie we have this great-hearted Norman, Oliver Elzear Mathieu, jousting right lustily for his Christ and endowing a new people with a granite-like tradition.

All honour to this great friend of the Empire.

OLD SERVICE RESUMED

For the first time since July, 1914, it is now possible to buy railroad tickets and have baggage checked directly through from Germany to points in the Far East. Tickets can be bought in Hamburg, Cologne and Berlin for Vladivostok, Manchuria, Harbin, Dairen, Tokio, Yokohama and other points. The trip from Berlin to Tokio takes fourteen days.

First Instalment

A lady had put on a new gown to go to a dinner dance, and she entered her husband's dressing room, pirouetted before him like a circus girl, and said: "This is my new gown, dear. Isn't it becoming?"

"It may be coming," returned her husband, "but, by gosh, a lot of it hasn't arrived yet."—Boston Transcript.

HIGH QUALITY SEED

— Produces —

HIGH GRADE GRAINS!The First Shipment of Wheat from Western Canada

The first export shipment of wheat out of Western Canada was made by the late Mr. R. C. Steele. In 1876 he journeyed from Toronto to Winnipeg, via St. Paul, using rail, boat and lumber wagon, to reach Winnipeg. There he secured 857 1/6 bushels of Manitoba wheat, to be used the following spring in Ontario, for seeding purposes.

LUTHERAN CLERGY LISTS

CANADA DISTRICT EV. LUTHERAN JOINT SYNOD OF OHIO AND OTHER STATES

The Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and Other States began its mission work in Western Canada in the summer of 1905. At first the work was carried on from Minnesota. In November Rev. Geo. Gehrke arrived in Winnipeg to take charge of the work. Soon mission work was begun in Saskatchewan and Alberta. When the work was organized into a separate district in September, 1908, there were sixteen ministers. Rev. Gehrke was the first president and acted in that capacity till his death in December 1915. He was succeeded by Rev. J. Fritz, whose successor, Rev. L. F. Tank, held the office till his death in March, 1924, when Rev. E. G. Hertz succeeded to the office.

From the beginning, the synod carried on a very active mission work and was successful in establishing many new fields, especially during the years when immigrants from continental Europe came into the country freely. At the present time, there are 58 ministers in the three prairie provinces with one in Ontario and two in British Columbia. There are more than 140 congregations and missions with a total membership of 22,000 souls.

In 1910 the movement began to erect an educational institution. Melville was chosen as a suitable place. A building was erected in 1913 and work began on January 5th, 1914, with 32 students. The institution was moved to Regina in 1926 where a new building had been erected which with the site is valued at $150,000.00. To this the Synod in the United States, contributed $120,000.00. There are at present eight professors and instructors connected with Luther College, and it has an enrollment of 141 students. The prospects for further growth are bright. Luther College now is the largest Lutheran school in Canada. The buildings vacated at Melville were soon to be used as a home for orphans and old people. As far as we know, this is the only Lutheran institution of its kind in Canada.

For its mission work, the synod spends, annually, about $25,000.00 and has lent to its congregations $70,000.00 for erecting churches. The annual turnover of Luther College approximates $80,000.00 of its revenues, the synod furnishes $12,200.00. The synod also contributes $3,000.00 toward the maintenance of the Old Folks and Childrens Home in Melville.

Agricultural Saskatchewan

THE ADVENTURES OF A WHEAT BERRY

Courtesy of the International Gyroscope

Our family name is Marquis and we were born in Saskatchewan, somewhere near Regina. Our mother was sown in the fertile ground by her master after the snows had left the ground. With the advent of summer and the warming of the ground and aided by the June rains mother started to grow. She grew tall and slender and clothed in a gown of lovely green. In due course we were born and like all our kind our mother carried us in her head. As the summer advanced we started to grow fat and round and gradually filled out our little green jackets. The wind swayed us back and forth and the sun beat down upon us and bye and bye our green clothes and mother's turned to a beautiful golden brown. Life was lovely on the prairie at the time.

The first event which broke the monotony of our peaceful life occurred in September. Our master got out his big horses and hitched them to a binder and started circling around the big field in which we lived. Suddenly mother was cut down by knives, close to the ground and we fell over onto a travelling belt. We were whisked up an incline into the binder and with a selected number of our kinsfolk were tied into a bundle and thrown out on the ground. We had hardly hit the ground when one of our master's servants picked us up and leaning us against other similar bundles left us in solitude.

After a few days, we and the other bundles were gathered and placed into a wagon and taken across the field to a great big machine driven by an engine that belched forth a cloud of smoke. In the big machine we had a terrible experience. We went through a cyclone, several earthquakes, fell through traps, mother was torn away from us and our clothes were ripped off our backs. We ended the adventure by sliding down a long pipe into a box set up on a wagon.

When the box was quite full we started across the prairie. Bumping over some railway tracks we climbed an incline into a shed attached to a very tall building. Here our master talked to the man in charge of the building and there seemed to be quite an argument. They both climbed up the side of the box and taking some of us in their hands let us slide through their fingers. The dispute appeared to be over our pedigree or grade and as to the amount of our old clothes and other dirt that was in the box. Finally our master said that he would ship a carload lot and they would settle on the basis of the pedigree set by the inspectors at Winnipeg. The man in charge of the tall building weighed us on the scale on which our box rested and gave our master a paper telling him how much we weighed and that we had been left at the tall building that day. The end of the box was removed and the box tilted up. We slid down into a dark hopper opened and we shot out onto a smoothly running belt. This belt carried us into a receptacle called a boot. From the boot we were carried to the top of the tall building in a bucket fastened to another belt and shot down a pipe into a big bin. Here we stayed and more of our kindred were piled in on top of us. Presently there was enough of us to fill a car and we were shot down a long pipe into a box-car and the doors were sealed tight. From this time on we were always designated by the number painted on our car.

Very soon after we were sealed up, an engine came along and took us away from beside the tall building and put our car in a long string of cars and we started out on a journey to see the sights of life. We travelled along until one day we reached Winnipeg. Here two men broke into our car and climbed in on top of us. One of them had a long tube-like trap. This he pushed down among us at several places and when a lot of our kinsfolk had fallen into the trap pulled it out. Those who had fallen into the trap were spilled out onto a piece of canvas and gathered up into a linen bag. One of the men wrote our car number on the bag and it was taken to the Inspection Office in the Grain Exchange.

In the Inspection Office our cousins were emptied out of the bag and the inspector looked them over ever so carefully. Some of them were gathered up and weighed and then placed on a sieve and shaken. All the dirt and other stuff that should not be there was taken out and they were weighed again. By this means was determined the amount of dockage which our car should have. The amount of space occupied by our cousins in relation to their weight was also noted. They were dried in heated oil to see if they had absorbed any moisture. All this is very important and determined our grade or pedigree, as to whether we would be classed among the aristocracy or whether we were tough and only fit for the slums.

After this inspection the Inspection Department, which is maintained by our master's government, told the railway people that we could proceed on our way to Fort Arthur. It did not take us long to reach that city and soon we found ourselves beside another tall building something like the first one we saw only far bigger and grander and all built of concrete. We wondered how they were going to get us out of our car, it seemed so much bigger than the wagon in which we first rode, so big that we did not think that it could be tilted up on end. We were told, however, that this is done in the up-to-date buildings. In our case, after the outside door had been pushed aside and the inner door broken open with an axe and taken away, those who were not near the door and had not already fallen out, were pushed out by big boards to which a cable is fastened. Two men climb into the car pulling the boards and cables with them. When they reach the ends of the car the cables tighten up and the boards are pulled towards the door. In this way our car was cleaned right out.

As at the first tall building we fell into a hopper underneath the floor. As our car was being emptied another government inspector stood by with a different sort of trap. This trap looked like a cup fastened to the end of a stick. The inspector would shove this trap in among us as we fell and those that couldn't dodge fell into it. Several trap's full were placed in a basket and the inspector took them into the tall building and a similar procedure to that used at Winnipeg took place.

As in the first tall building we travelled from the hopper into the boot and up to the top of the building. Some of us got dizzy as we were nearly two hundred feet above the ground.

The people who run the tall building were told that they must not let us get mixed with other carload lots for a little while but that eventually they could put us in with carloads that had been given the same pedigree as we carried. For this reason our little crowd stayed together and from the top of the tall building we were shot down a pipe into a big receptacle called a garner. We stopped in the garner a little while and then dropped down one floor into the weigh scales. Here a weigh-man, who is employed by the government, takes our weight again. In order that there can be no mistake in writing down figures the weigh-scales automatically stamp our weight on a card which carries our car number.

From the bottom of the scales there is another pipe and this pipe is different from all the other pipes we had seen. It is pointed in the centre and has a wheel on the bottom and can be moved from one spot to another. In the floor on which the wheel moves are a number of holes. By moving the pipe over these holes the contents of the weigh-scales can be sent to various parts of the building. In our case the pipe was moved over a hole and we slid down into a circular bin.

From the bottom of this bin we were shot down into a big machine called a cleaner. Here, as out on the prairie, we had a nerve-racking experience. There was another cyclone. We fell onto screens that were shaken back and forth and having different sized openings. Gradually we all fell through these holes and descended down into the boot again. As before we were picked up in the buckets fastened to a belt and carried to the top of the building. Down we went through the garner into the weigh-scales. On this occasion the funny pipe with the wheel on it was put over a different hole and we fell through onto a big travelling belt. This belt carried us out into what is called the annex which consists entirely of circular bins. From this belt a machine tripped us off into one of the big circular bins and we were left in peace again.

Our master had sold us and we were joined by other carload lots of our same pedigree until our bin was filled to the top. While resting here we learned a great deal. We found out that our building could take in a hundred and twenty-five carloads of about twelve hundred bushels a day. That altogether it would hold somewhere in the neighborhood of three million bushels. That when it was to be emptied fifty thousand bushels an hour could be shot through the shipping spouts. We are anticipating our next adventure which happened as follows:

The tall building in which we were kept projected out into Lake Superior. On one side are the railway tracks on which we arrived and on the other side a slip so that boats could enter and tie up beside the building. In due course a big freighter arrived. A door in the bottom of our bin opened and we descended onto another broad belt. This belt carried us into the main building again and into another boot. Up we went to the top of the building in another elevator, this one called the shipping leg. From the top we fell down into the weigh-scales, and our weight was recorded again. From the scales we descended into a bin called the shipping bin. From this bin we went through the side of the building, down another long pipe into a great big receptacle in the boat. The inspector with the funny trap was there again and took further samples to see that our pedigree had not changed during our sojourn in the tall building. The boat in which we found ourselves is like a big box and can hold three hundred thousand bushels. At one end is the engine and boiler and at the other end the quarters for the captain who sails the boat and all in between is divided up into big receptacles for holding the cargo.

This big boat is to take us to Montreal. At that city we will pass through another tall building and be emptied into an ocean going steamer. After crossing the ocean we will be taken out and packed in bags and sent to a flour mill. There the purpose of our growth and existence will be accomplished and we will become flour to satisfy the hunger of the peoples that live across the big ocean.

POOL ELEVATORS

By Ben Plumer.

Pool elevators have demonstrated themselves to be an important cog in the Pool machine. With their aid the grain can be handled from the wagon to the ship's side with the utmost in protection and satisfaction to the Pool farmers and if I read the mind of our men aright, it is that they are determined to equip themselves and operate this equipment to handle their own grain just as nearly 100 percent as that can be done. They will extend their organization until there is only one channel through which Pool grain will be handled and that will be owned and operated by the Pool farmer himself, and any benefits or advantages accruing through this operation will revert back to the men who produced the grain.

Farmers are realizing more clearly every year how simple it is for them to finance the movement of their grain by the establishment of their own houses, carrying their grain from their farms direct to the men who are going to grind their wheat into flour. They have found that by setting aside the small sum of two cents (2c) per bushel on their wheat, each year, that they are able to buy country elevators by the hundreds and while their contribution each season is small, the result obtained in a five year period is enormous. They can equip almost every point in Western Canada that might reasonably expect a country elevator with that small deduction during the five year period. In addition to these hundreds of country houses, they have bought, leased and carried on eleven terminal elevators with a capacity of nearly forty-two and a half million (42,500,000) bushels. A large proportion of these terminal elevators are paid for.

Our objective has been the largest possible volume of Pool grain through Pool houses. We realize that to operate our system economically we must handle as close to our capacity as possible. We strive to obtain large handlings and in this respect so far all the Pool systems have achieved marked success. From the 1926-1927 crop in Saskatchewan, two hundred and four million (204,000,000) bushels passed through country houses. The five hundred and eighty-six (586) Saskatchewan Pool Elevators handled seventy-four millions (74,000,000) bushels as compared with two hundred and thirty million (230,000,000) bushels handled by two thousand (2000) non-Pool elevators. The thirty (30) Manitoba Pool Elevators had the remarkable record of handling one hundred and eighty-eight thousand (188,000) bushels per house for the 1926 crop. The average handling of the Alberta Pool Elevators for 1926 was one hundred and twenty-five thousand, five hundred (125,500) bushels per elevator.

HEAVY INVESTMENT

At the present time when the Alberta Pool has practically completed its fifth year of operation and the Manitoba and

Saskatchewan Pools fourth year, the combined investments of the three Pools in line and terminal elevators exceeds twenty million dollars ($20,000,000). At the close of 1927, the line and terminal elevators owned and leased by the Pools, were as follows:

Line Elevators.

	No.	Capacity
Alberta	160	6,400,000
Manitoba	57	2,510,000
Saskatchewan	720	21,600,000
Total	927	30,510,000

This year the three Pools are building several hundred new country elevators.

Terminal Elevators.

	No.	Capacity
Alberta	3	5,400,000
Saskatchewan	5	34,975,000
Canadian Wheat Pool....	3	2,100,000
Total	11	42,475,000

From the 1926 crop, Pool terminals handled nearly eighty-two million (82,000,000) bushels of grain. This year, the Saskatchewan Pool country houses will handle that amount.

"THE CONQUERING OF ISOLATION"

Address of Colin H. Burnell

at the International Pool Conference Regina, 1928.

"A study of the world's social and business structure at the present time will reveal the fact that society as at present constituted in almost every country in the civilized world, is permeated by co-operative institutions, but in many cases some of our most successful co-operatives are, as it were, working apart in a field of their own so far as strengthening or encouraging other co-operatives is concerned, and consequently in a consideration of the co-operative over-looked.

Urges Closer Harmony

"It would seem that any effort which would tend to bring all co-operatives into closer harmony would be well worth while. It is hoped that this conference will be a factor working to that end. Co-operators the world over should march forward together. We are not striving to take that which belongs to others, but simply to bring about a more equitable distribution of the world's goods. Agricultural co-operators have ahead of them the onerous problem of civilizing agriculture. Some may think that an exaggerated statement, but I cannot see how in this age of labor saving invention and sanitary conveniences, agriculture can be said to be civilized, so long as the majority of farmers' families have to do without most of what are considered everyday necessities by their city cousins. It is not the farmer's fault that he has to live in the country in order to produce the raw material for the world's food and clothes, and this fact should be recognized by the governing bodies of our agricultural countries in all legislation; but the farmer can only hope to conquer his isolation by co-operation, until the farmers in sufficient numbers recognize their position and organize to buy and sell in a modern business way, unitedly, instead of individually, we cannot expect due recognition from other classes, most of which are already highly organized for their mutual benefit.

"In my opinion it is the duty of all agricultural co-operative societies to give leadership to agriculture; they should be able to do this because within their ranks they have the most progressive members of the rural community. Where a co-operative is successful it usually has the confidence of a majority of its membership, and in this way its directors are able to bring about many improvements in agricultural practices among the membership which is a service no other institution is in as good a position to render. There has been much talk of the improvement which the Western Canadian Wheat Pools have made in the morale of the Canadian farmer, but I expect when the history of the next few years comes to be written, it will be found that a great many improvements in rural life in this country will be credited to the influence of agricultural co-operatives.

"I am in hopes that at this Conference a very strong committee will be appointed which could be called the National Co-operative Committee, to devise ways and means of getting all our Canadian co-operatives acquainted with each other and working together. We have such a committee for the province of Manitoba, and we are looking forward to some real results in the furtherance of our co-operative movement by means of it. When we look across the line into the United States and see the formation of a nationwide organization, having as its avowed object the fighting of agricultural co-operation, it seems high time that we aid our co-operative movement better organized and its various units more closely bound together.

Progress Universal

"Our five years' experience in the organisation of the Wheat Pools has clearly shown that farmers can be organized as well as any other class when proper business methods are applied.

"After the last two International Wheat Pool conferences, a great deal was published about the formation of a World Wheat Pool. This has never been our objective, but we have tried to do everything possible to encourage the formation of grain selling organisations similar to our own in other competitive countries. In the United States it would seem that the Wheat Pool movement could make most progress by districts; one Pool for the Southwest, hard winter wheat, one for the Northern hard spring wheat, and another for the soft winter wheat of Indiana, Ohio, and neighboring states. From Australia comes word that the state of South Australia is organizing on a three-year contract basis, and an attempt has been made in the Argentine in a small way, to organize a Pool among some of the Danish farmers there. We hope that farmers in these other wheat growing countries will not be discouraged but will profit by the experience of their Canadian neighbors and keep on working until they get the marketing of their wheat fully organized. In Western Canada we feel that we can make our best contribution to the co-operative cause by making our organization still stronger and more efficient.

To Offset Propaganda

"Much propaganda has been circulated in consumer countries in an effort to turn the consumers against our Wheat Pools, so your committee has invited to this conference representatives of two of the world's biggest consumer co-operative societies (in the country which uses the largest quantity of our surplus wheat), the English Co-operative Wholesale and the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale, the secretary of the International Co-operative Alliance, representing about fifty million members, and Sir Thomas Allen, formerly one of the directors of the English Co-operative Wholesale and now with the British Empire Marketing Board, in the hope that their representatives by meeting our wheat growers in the capital of our wheat belt may become better acquainted with our organization, its aims and objects, and the conditions which it was organized to remedy.

"Much has been said about our Canadian Wheat Pools having changed the mental outlook of our Western Canadian farmers, and having raised the psychology of our farm people generally. That no doubt is true and must always be true where a large number of people engaged in a common calling band themselves together for their mutual advancement."

A GREAT AND PROGRESSIVE INDUSTRY ESTABLISHED ON THE SASKATCHEWAN PRAIRIES

THREE FLOUR AND ROLLED OATS PLANTS OF ROBIN HOOD MILLS, LIMITED NOW LOCATED IN THE PROVINCE.

UP-TO-DATE AND EFFICIENT METHODS AND MACHINERY CAPACITY INCREASES YEARLY.

In the 1928 Year Book we published an account in some detail of the establishment in Saskatchewan, in the year 1908, of Robin Hood Mills Limited, and their subsequent growth. Our readers will no doubt remember that after a preliminary survey of the grain-growing possibilities of the Moose Jaw district, and a study of the suitability of that point as a milling centre, the present company acquired the small existing plant of the Moose Jaw Milling Co., which at the time had a capacity of only 150 barrels of flour daily. At that time settlement of the surrounding district had not extended much beyond a radius of 25 miles from Moose Jaw, and the whole country-side only produced about half as much wheat as the present mill at Moose Jaw alone can now grind in a year. The production of a quality flour and successful business management have resulted in the increase in the size of the flour mill at Moose Jaw to a capacity of 4,000 barrels daily; the acquiring and remodelling in the year 1926 of the old Rectoria Mill a few miles outside Saskatoon; and the building in 1927 of a splendid new modern mill in the City of Saskatoon itself; so that the Robin Hood Mills Limited now operate three mills in Saskatchewan alone in addition to their mill at Calgary, Alta., which has a capacity of 2,000 barrels of flour daily. By the end of this present year (1929) the total capacity of their mills will have grown to 10,000 barrels of flour daily, while the capacity of the three Saskatchewan mills alone will be 8,000 barrels daily, with adequate storage capacity and elevator facilities for the efficient and scientific handling of the grain.

The Robin Hood mills thus offer a very valuable home market for their grain to the farmers of Saskatchewan, and the immense business involved in carrying on manufacturing operations on this scale is an important factor in the economic life of the Province. Some phases of the tremendous business created in this way will readily present themselves to the reader's mind, such as the freight of outward-going products; the freight of inward-coming grain and coal and tremendous list of other necessary supplies; wages paid; electric power consumed, etc. For instance, in the working out of a co-ordinated power scheme for the Province it has been recognised that the three large cities as the greatest consumers of electric power are vital factors to be considered. Now the Robin Hood Mills at Moose Jaw are partly operated by an extremely modern steam engine plant, but partly also by electric power, and they consume about one-third of all the current developed in Moose Jaw. The plant at Saskatoon is operated by electric power entirely, so that it may readily be seen that the building up of such an industrial concern as the Robin Hood Mills is helping in an important way towards the solving of this power problem; which is in more than one sense very much a burning question of the day.

Robin Hood Flour, in addition to being in increasing demand in the home market throughout Canada, is also exported to all parts of the world, and the company own and operate their own private dock at Vancouver in connection with the Oriental trade and trade via the Panama Canal. As Saskatchewan's Great North develops its potential mineral and other wealth and as the Bay route becomes a commercial reality it is easy to see also the strategic position in which their plant at Saskatoon will be located. When, as during the past year or so, great interest has centred on possible future developments on a vast scale in connection with mining operations in the North and power schemes in the North and South, it is interesting and encouraging to pause and measure the progress that has been made already by established and substantial industrial concerns in the central and southern portions of the province. Such progress, such building up of a modern, civilized economic life, constitutes a veritable romance when we consider that within the memory of those now living a little missionary party floated down the Saskatchewan river to Prince Albert on a log raft as their only means of transportation, that hardy settlers were dragging their effects from Winnipeg by ox-cart, and traders and hunters were sending out to Winnipeg saggon trains of buffalo hides and bones.

In the foregoing only the manufacture of Robin Hood Flour has been mentioned, but Robin Hood Rolled Oats and oatmeal are other very important products of the Robin Hood Mills. Robin Hood Rolled Oats were first milled at Moose Jaw in the year 1911 and at the present time the Moose Jaw Rolled Oats plant has a daily capacity of 1200 barrels. These Oats are packed in sacks of various sizes and also in the attractive ree packages which occupy a prominent place on the shelves of all grocers' and general stores throughout Canada; having won their way to this enviable popularity in a comparatively very few years in the face of keen competition with other well-known and established brands. There is no denying the fact that particularly in Saskatchewan's climate the health-and-strength breakfast starts with a hot, nourishing dish of porridge made from Saskatchewan-milled, Saskatchewan-grown oats. Robin Hood Oats are much in favor because of their wholesomeness and the special flavor imparted to them by the "Pan-Dried" process.

Always abreast of the times, Robin Hood Mills Limited in recent years supplied the modern need for speed by producing rolled oats in a special small flake which cooks in a few minutes, this being packed in the well-known cartons under the name of Robin Hood Rapid Oats. These "Rapid Oats" have further made a name for themselves by means of the dainty and artistic chinaware premiums which are packed with them. The premiums save consumers money and this is another instance of the up-to-date merchandising service given by the Robin Hood company.

More recently still, as it seemed no longer possible to improve the oats, an improvement was made in the package in which they are contained, the package being now "tight-wrapped" and double-sealed. This is a hygienic protection which keeps the oats perfectly fresh, sweet and wholesome for an indefinite period. Those who live some distance from town and need to buy in fairly large quantities at a time can still enjoy the convenience of using Rapid Oats from the package, since they can safely buy them by the case or more. They can also in this way secure a good assortment of the chinaware premiums—so eagerly sought after for their quality and beauty by those who want only the best of chinaware on their tables, and for reasons of economy by the thrifty housewife who knows their splendid value. We might add that the complicated and ingenious machinery which performs the various operations of filling, closing, sealing, wrapping and double-sealing the cartons of Rapid Oats is well worth seeing, and visitors are always welcome at the mills, where they will be gladly shown these and all the other elaborate processes of milling the Robin Hood Flour and Rapid Oats.

Perhaps one other way in which the status of Robin Hood Mills Limited can be gauged is that they are nowadays grouped among the large national advertisers in Canada, and this great business has been built up in less than twenty years on the raw prairies of Saskatchewan. The silence of the primeval solitudes has given place to the hum and whirl of the mill wheels and the well-nigh ceaseless roar of the rolls, that night or day seldom stop the music so sweet to the ears of lovers of industry.

Industrial Regina

"PILE OF BONES," INDIAN SETTLEMENT, GROWS INTO AMAZING MODERN CITY

By GORDON RUTLEDGE

"Financial Post"—Toronto

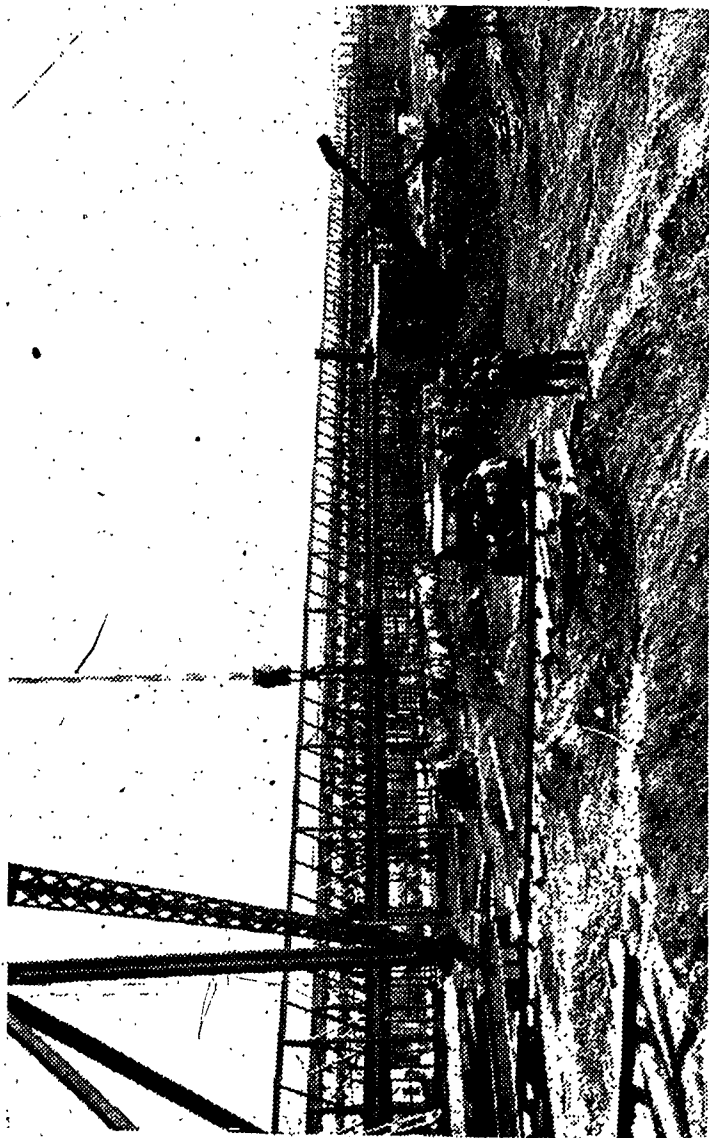

Some forty years ago a little Indian settlement, Pile-of-Bones, grew up on bald prairie. For forty years men of age and faith have trekked to that spot and to that prairie. The railways come and the highways have developed. To-day, as forty years ago, this land of broad horizon—but bald prairie it is not. At every station elevators, and at many places where there are no railways as yet. The old settlement has become the great province of Saskatchewan, and serving that province indeed, the whole West, has grown Regina, a city born of the old Pile-of-Bones, and given its new and beautiful name by Princess Louise.

Regina Only Starting.

Regina has come far in 40 years; but the great point is not the progress that has been achieved; but the certain progress that lies ahead. Regina has built well and developments of the last two years, and especially of 1928, indicate that on this sound foundation it is to progress steadily and rapidly, growing with the country because it is rendering a vital service to the country. Regina is yet another large example justifying the growing confidence of Canadians in Canada.

The eyes of Canadian leaders are on Regina. There is ample proof of this—the proof of figures. In the present year twelve new industries have been established, twenty-three commercial houses, six financial institutions; while eight firms, who for long have operated in the Saskatchewan capital, have expanded their premises. The building permits for the first 10 months of the year have numbered 1,068 and represent $6,145,920.

Why?

Regina is strategically placed. From it can be served economically the vast area that has become so rich. But it is not only of the present buying power that these industrial leaders, who have made Regina their western headquarters, are thinking. They, as is the new way with Canadian leaders, are looking ahead.

They see not only great grain crops, but they see mixed farming, and dairying, making the agricultural future still more sure. They see a developing mining area which will do for the West what the mines of Northern Ontario have done for Toronto and other Canadian cities; and what the mines of Quebec are doing more and more for Montreal. They see a land of promise, and believe—and their belief is based on facts—that the promise is not to be too long deferred.

World Leadership

Regina is the world's leading centre for the sale of agricultural implements. Over $35,000,000 worth of machinery was distributed from Regina in 1928, and much more might have been sold had more been available.

For 1929, what? For the years to come, what? The farmers are well-to-do. Their debts—broadly speaking—are paid. Many of them are investors in securities outside their lands. Surely the Industrialists are right in seeing in these farmers a great buying power. The huge sale of agricultural implements is but an evidence of the power to buy other things—cars, necessities and luxuries for the home and stock.

And so Regina is leaping ahead because it serves a great district, but its progress is being accelerated because of many things for which the people of Regina must themselves take credit.

The position of the city's utilities is an outstanding evidence of the good government that it has obtained. Street railways, in this age of automobiles, are a sore problem in many communities, but the Regina Municipal Railway pays, and so does the power plant—handsomely—and the water works. The three utilities bill, for 1928, show a combined surplus of $260,000.

Good Place to Live

Then in Regina life is full. This is not a city given over to money-making alone. Last year there were 50,000 people, according to the census. This year it is estimated—apparently conservatively—there are 56,000. Most of these are young and they, individually and collectively, are working for happiness. It is a city with beautiful parks; whose people possess appreciation, as evidenced by a beautiful and dignified war memorial. The schools are modern—the very best word, indeed. No sins of the fathers have to be eradicated here. The board of education has so managed things that not only are the buildings of the very best, but the teaching staff too; and it is a rounded education the children get. Even the harmonica bands are present, and it is evident the children, and the young people in the colleges, are taught not only for examinations but for life.

A Medical Centre

Hospitals there are of the best, and surgeons and doctors who are making Regina a medical centre to which come patients from all the country around.

The new Saskatchewan Hotel of the P. R. has added another attraction to the city. It is not only a place for the entertainment of out-of-town visitors, or delegates to the many conventions that have come to Regina, but the hotel is a social centre for Regina's citizens, and on a Saturday night especially it is the scene of many parties.

Last, and first too, for that matter, Regina is blessed with a good press. Away back in those early days—some forty odd years ago—The Leader was established, and all down the years the people have been following The Leader and getting from it the best in news service, and doubtless in opinion, though due account must be taken of varying political views. With The Leader goes the Evening Post, and now has come The Star, a new newspaper venture and a healthy child. Good newspapers make a good city; to the press of Regina doubtless goes a goodly part of the credit for a most attractive, inspiring city.

Regina is a very important financial centre. It is the head office of several institutions, but these do not represent the extent of its financial importance. It is the Western headquarters for three of the Canadian chartered banks, it numbers important branches of many trust and loan companies and insurance companies and has several investment banking and brokerage houses. Direct wires carry the quotations of leading stock exchanges to the blackboards of Regina brokers.

An evidence of the new importance of Regina as a financial centre was seen recently when a large bond issue totalling $3,000,000 was underwritten in Regina, the legal work was done in Regina, and a Regina trust company was appointed trustee for the issue. It was a Regina institution that borrowed the money. The bonds were not finally sold in Regina, but up to that point the whole operation was conducted within the confines of the city.

REGINA AIR PORT MODEL OF ITS KIND

Municipal Air Board Has Charge of Development

FLYING CLUB ACTIVE

Commercial Aviation Shows Progress— New Routes to be Established

One of the first cities in Canada to have a municipal flying field, Regina is building for a future that will, in all probability, be greatly influenced by aviation. The Regina Flying Club, established under the Dominion government plan, during the winter of 1927 has taken the lead in aviation education in Regina and has been given the full co-operation of the city authorities.

The city has allotted 160 acres, conveniently situated, for the purpose of a municipal aerodrome, and has granted $7,000 to be used in the erection of a hangar and in putting the field in proper shape. The hangar, which is now nearing completion and will be capable of housing six machines, is 50 by 80 feet in size, entirely metal covered, and is built on an asphalt mat 100 by 200 feet. It is the intention of the city to hand over this hangar to the flying club for use over a period of five years, after which it will be used for housing the club machines and visiting aircraft.

The city council has appointed a municipal air board of seven to regulate matters regarding aviation and to administer the city grant. Through this board Regina is definitely linked with the progress being made in aviation. The result of the far-sighted attitude of the city fathers toward aviation is that the citizens of Regina are air-minded and a large number have actually made flights and know how their city looks from the air.

Commercial Companies Active

Commercial aviation is gradually developing, and the air board has already received applications from three local companies for sites on the municipal aerodrome upon which to build hangars. Two local companies are now in operation, one of which has been carrying passengers in the local area for some years. During the past summer the Western Canada Airways established Regina as a terminal point on their Regina-Edmonton run, and planes fuel at Regina on their daily run between Winnipeg and Calgary. Plans are already under way by the Universal Air Industries and the Commercial Airways, the two local companies, to operate feeder planes on short runs in every direction out of Regina.

Membership in the Regina Flying Club at the end of October 1928, was 121, of which fifty members are or have been under instruction. One commercial pilot-certificate has been obtained. Ten students have obtained private licenses and a number are preparing for their tests. Since the club was formed 408 flying hours have been put in during 1,250 flights. G. C. Rooke, vice-pres., Regina Flying Club, has declared that the advertising value to the city of the formation of the Regina Flying Club has more than paid for the cost of the hangar.

An interesting sidelight on the attitude of the community towards aviation is the decision of the vocational board of the Regina Collegiate to institute a course in aeronautical engineering and the engaging of experienced instructors. The board has secured from the Dominion government a Camel aeroplane fitted with a Clerget engine and have also secured a Liberty engine.

It is expected that by December 10 the municipal air port will be completely equipped with electric light and telephone service. A mile of poles has been erected, connecting the field with the nearest connecting point. With the installation of lights it is expected that the western air mail service will start. Members of the Regina municipal air board are as follows: Chairman, A. E. Whitmore; Ald. F. G. England; Ald. N. J. Taylor, G. C. Rooke, R. H. Read, Dr. E. A. McCusker, Secretary; Capt. Delhaye.

LEADS WHOLE WORLD AS DISTRIBUTING POINT FOR FARM MACHINERY

Regina Sells in 1928 About $35,000,000 of Agricultural Implements—Big Outlet for Motor Trucks

Regina leads the world as a distributor of farm machinery. This honor formerly belonged to Kansas City and later to Fargo, North Dakota, but for several years now has been held by Regina.

Visitors to the Saskatchewan capital in the spring have an opportunity of seeing literally acres of farm implements, for all manufacturers distributing from Regina are compelled at this season to utilize open fields for the storing of their machinery.

Another Big Increase

Regina not only Leads the world, but seems certain to maintain that lead, for the volume of farm machinery sold from the Saskatchewan capital is increasing year by year. In 1928 an increase of $10,000,000 over 1927 has been shown, and the increase could have been greater if manufacturers had realized in time the wonderful market which exists as a result of the prosperity of the Saskatchewan farms.

In trucks, for instance, there were huge sales in 1928, but not the sales which would have been made if manufacturers had provided sufficient supplies. One make of truck was in demand at the Regina Fair. Forty were sold during the period of that fair. Had one hundred been there, so that the farmers could drive them away, it is said that they would all have been snapped up.

Trucks Used for Grain

Conveying grain from farm to elevators by truck is an increasingly general practice.

A few figures relating to Regina's place as a farm implement distributor will be interesting:

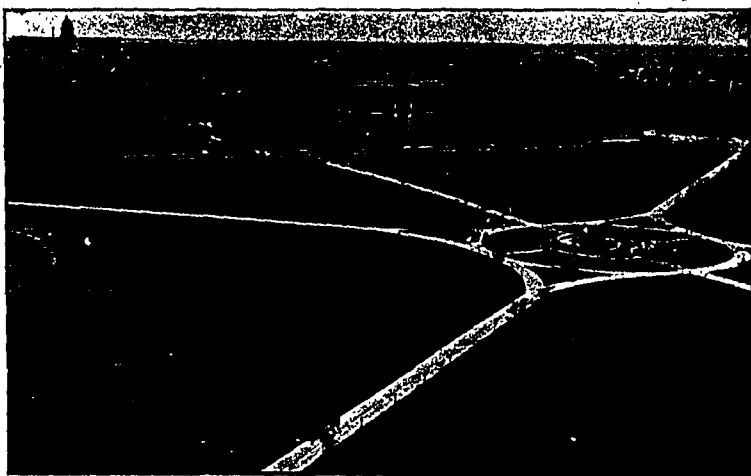

Number of firms distributing farm implements out of Regina—30.

Total number of employees (office, warehouse, travelers), over 1,200.

Total payroll, over $1,500,000.

Total volume of business for 1928, over $35,000,000.

THE KING'S DAUGHTER

Darkness was on the countryside.
 "O love, O little love," he cried,
 "Reach out your hand to me!"
 And to the pleading shepherd lad
 She reached her hand out, proud and glad;
 "With all my heart," said she.

"The way is sharp," he said, "and slow.
 The night is thicker as we go.
 Lean not so long on me."
 She drew her eager hand away.
 "Have cheer, for surely comes the day
 And journey's end," said she.

"Choose now a way less black and steep.
 I must lie down awhile to sleep.
 I can no more," said he.
 "Alas, but for my father's sake
 There is no way to take.
 I go alone," said she.

ROSALIE HICKLER,
 in The Atlantic Monthly.

IF I WERE QUITTING THE EARTH TONIGHT

If I were quitting this earth tonight
 And traveling into the land of light,
 I'd pause, I know, for a last long look
 Through the pages of my favorite book;
 Retrace the steps of sunny hours
 Through woodland valleys, rich with flowers;
 I'd even take the time to stop
 At the dingy old tobacco shop;
 I'd pause and pass the time of day
 With the collie dog across the way.
 Ever a sentimental fool, . . .
 I'd wander down by the dear old school,
 Where, years ago, I studied and played—
 Where the best of me was surely made.
 I'd want to wait till the year was old
 And walk abroad in the crisp and cold
 Bright air, and once again to know
 The rhythmic crunching of feet on snow.
 I'd long for a taste of rare old wine,
 (These things are part of this life of mine).

But you—I'd leave you with little regret,
 Why, you'll be a laughing sinner yet,
 When all the stuff in the world is gone,
 For you are a soul, and souls live on.
 You'll have the same dear, whimsical ways
 As you had in the happiest earthly days.
 Life is long; eternity longer;
 Death is strong, but love is stronger.
 When you and I are buried and dead,
 The best of our lives will lie ahead,
 For you'll be a spirit, and so will I.
 Spirits that live and never die.
 It is only because I love you so
 I'll not be sad when I have to go,
 But I'd say good-bye (for my peace of mind)
 To the dear old things that must stay behind—
 My books, my pipe, the old arm-chair,
 My study and all the pictures there;
 The fruit in the orchard, the humming bees,
 The birds that nested in the trees.

To all these things I would say good-bye,
 They have no souls, and they must die.

TO A LONE PINE TREE

*Straight and tall you stand,
A lonely sentinel
Outlined against a wintry sky.
Around your feet
The sleeping grasses lie
Beneath a coverlet of snow
Spread by Nature's hand.
Brave and tall you stand,
A silhouette dark against the night.
How still you keep!
As if you feared to waken
Them that sleep.*

*While the pale moon sheds a silver light
Through the land.
O patient tree, you hold your head so high
Tell us; can you see the coming Spring
Can you smell the fragrance of the flow
Or hear the flutter of a robin's wing?
Then patiently we'll wait—
Even as you, with noble head held high
Wait so trustingly 'neath wintry sky.*

STRANGE TALES

*Where'er the west wind blows home from the sea,
It brings the strangest tales to me.*

*Of Ships, and sails, and sailors, too,
And a lonesome flag 'gainst a sky of blue.*

*And coralled isles 'neath a tropic moon
Where the surf rides high and the night winds croon.*

*And palm-fringed islands lift and sweep
And birds sing praises all the day.*

*Where solemn Buddha greets the morrow
And dotes on ages, yet unborn.*

*And mystery men in a mystery land,
And mystery things on every hand.*

*So, where'er the west wind blows home from the sea,
It brings the strangest tales to me.*

Leading Saskatchewan Cities

BEAUTIFUL SASKATOON

Were Sieur de la Verendrye to revisit his ancient haunts on the Saskatchewan River he would find a more extraordinary change than would the great Champlain in his old Quebec. He would find, reaching along the shores of his glorious river and extending far back on either height the sky-line of a noble city—a very, very noble city. Saskatoon is astonishingly beautiful.

Just as Athens is characterised at once by the Acropolis, so do the magnificent buildings of the University of Saskatchewan lend Saskatoon conspicuous significance. Grey stone quadrangles, lovely architecture and beautiful lawns, hedges and campus, all representing many millions, give this city an atmosphere of wealth and dignity unlooked for in the Western prairies. Associated with this scholastic estate spreads a residential district which in charm of entourage and chic of taste is comparable to anything in outermost Grande Allée, North Toronto or Shaughnessy Heights. Yes, Saskatoon is astonishingly beautiful.

The most interesting study in Saskatchewan is to follow every year the battle for supremacy in growth between Saskatoon and Regina. It is the story of Montreal and Toronto all over again. To date the ascendancy rests with the Capital but with both towns giving yearly building permits in excess of five million dollars the lead is very slender. Thirty-nine passenger trains daily arrive and depart in Saskatoon—a fair indication of the force of Saskatoon's slogan: "Ship from the Centre and not from the Rim." Her wholesalers and jobbers trade over an exclusive distributing territory of 48,600 square miles, her manufacturing plants control the trade of 70,000 square miles for locally manufactured goods. Population —? Well, any amateur economist realises surely that Saskatoon in 1903 had a population of 113 —and to observe today it approximates 50,000! And with Bank clearings now at $118,173,474, and steadily increasing,—it would be obviously unnecessary to say more.

Saskatchewan is an overwhelmingly rural and agricultural province and that the statistics of urban population in no way connote the relatively all-vital potentialities of these prairie cities. Yet even at that it is rather amazing to recall that

"THE FRIENDLY CITY"

Proudly bearing the most picturesque name of the great West, Moose Jaw reminds us that there is no more incongenity about its nomenclature than in England's "Oxford," — then the Moose Jaw man laughs good-naturedly and shakes hands. Because that's the spirit of the place—it radiates everywhere—jovially, sun-shine, friendliness.

Moose Jaw is the Railway Capital of Saskatchewan; headquarters for the Province of the Canadian Pacific Railways whose local employees exceed 2,000 with a monthly pay-roll approximating $300,000.00. The City is the Canadian terminus of the Soo Line, running direct to Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago, and is a sub-divisional point on the Canadian National Railways. The Canadian National bridge and traffic deck over the South Saskatchewan River at Elbow affords direct connection by rail and road to all Northern Saskatchewan, this opening up an immense farming territory of considerable promise as regards wholesale distributing trade. Twelve lines of railway radiate from Moose Jaw with several additional lines at present in course of construction.

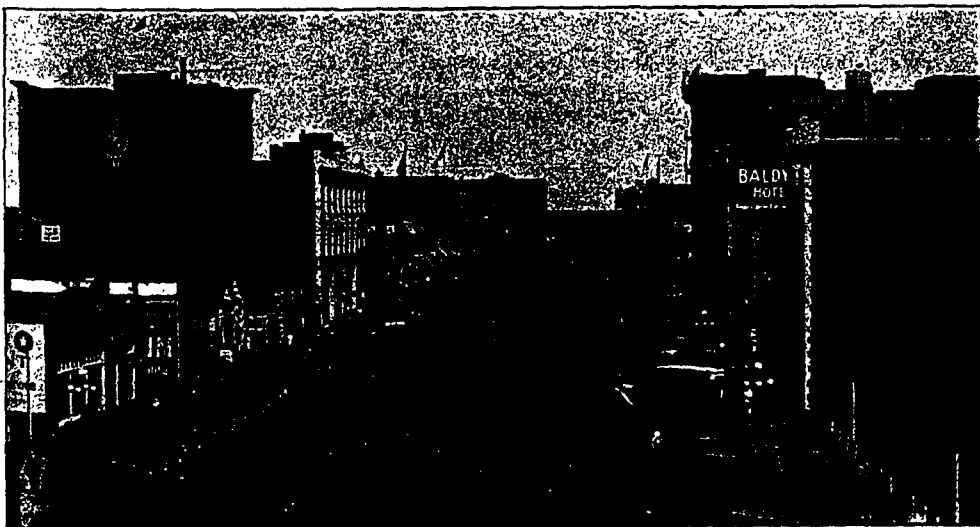

In view of the enormous tonnage of grain passing through Moose Jaw over both great transcontinental railways, Moose Jaw, in a few years, is destined to enjoy the many practical benefits that accrue by reason of its being one of the great centres of the highly developed and ever expanding grain trade of North America. The City possesses one of the three Canadian Government Interior Storage Elevators with a capacity of 3,500,000 bushels. The elevator is equipped with ample and the most modern facilities for the treatment of damp or off-grade grain. The district surrounding Moose Jaw is prosperous and well settled. Although its productive capacity has not yet been fully developed, its annual production of wheat alone already exceeds 70,000,000 bushels.

Moose Jaw, with 60 wholesale houses, employing more than 300 commercial travellers, is a logical distributing point for the central, western, and south-western portions of the Province. In this vast territory there are two smaller cities, 75 towns, 175 villages and 200 hamlets.

Moose Jaw is a great industrial centre. The Robin Hood Mills, operating the second largest flour mill in Western Canada and the largest oat milling plant, have a daily capacity of 4,000 barrels of flour, 1,250 barrels of cereals and a large tonnage of stock foods. The packing plant of the Swift Canadian Company Ltd. has a daily capacity of 1,700 hogs, 1,000 sheep and 700 steers. The Harris Abattoir (Saskatchewan) Ltd. also operates a large packing plant here. The immense plant of the South Saskatchewan Co-Operative Stockyards, situated on both the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways, equipped to handle 7,000 head of stock daily, reflects the rapid development of mixed farming and assures to the stock raiser a permanent and profitable market. The City is also the headquarters of the Saskatchewan Co-Operative Livestock Marketing Association (better known as the Saskatchewan Livestock Pool). Moose Jaw is also the headquarters of, and the location of the plant of the Saskatchewan Registered Seed Growers' Association, who distribute large quantities of registered and clean grain, grass and sweet clover seeds throughout the West, and is building up an extensive export trade with the United States, Great Britain, Europe, and the Orient. The unique record of the Moose Jaw Agricultural Society, which won all the honors of the Provincial Seed Grain Fair at the University of Saskatoon, for seven consecutive years, 1919 to 1925 inclusive, and second place in 1926, was due in large measure, to the use of registered seed by its farmer members. The farmers' co-operative movement had its birth and first home in Moose Jaw. In August of 1927 Moose Jaw was created a Grain Inspection Division, a development that is having far-reaching effects, not only in respect to the City itself, but also throughout the extensive district tributary to Moose Jaw.

A FAIR CLAIM UPON CANADIAN MEN AND WOMEN

By SIR JOSEPH FLAVELLE BART.

(Address delivered at the Produced-in-Canada dinner of the Toronto Branch, C.M.A., on November 26, 1925.)

There is a tendency to unduly classify the community, and to over-emphasize class consciousness, class interests and sectional demand. In the country's enterprises and trade, we label some as producers, some as middlemen, and others as consumers. We lightly assume there is a conflict of interest between these classes, and that each should exercise vigilance if it is to protect itself from the selfish pressure of the others. And yet, have we not in fact interests largely in common, but with such diversified responsibility that most of the advantages we desire for ourselves can be best secured from our own efforts in co-operation with others, and without unfairness to others?

We base our views of one another too much upon prejudice, suspicion and ignorance, and too little upon knowledge and confidence. We humans have immeasurably more interests in common than in conflict. We will always have the good sense to be watchful, but remember Barrie's admonition: "Doubts breed suspicion—a dangerous air."

No Distinctive Class

There can be no distinctive class of producers, or middlemen, or consumers. All are consumers, and all share to some degree in production. The farmer who buys agricultural implements, or clothes, or furniture, is a consumer of these products, which capital and industrial workmen have produced for his needs, while the workmen who made these articles consumed the farmer's products. The banker, who from the resources entrusted to him by depositors, produces the credits needed for the development of agriculture, industry and commerce, is with the depositors in turn a consumer of the products made possible by the instrument of credit they have created. Transportation is an essential to producer and consumer, while yet a great middleman activity, connecting both. The illustrations can be multiplied by references to all phases of this gathering and organization human activity.

The foregoing by way of introduction. As I understand it, the object of this gathering and the organization it represents is to stimulate the Canadian people to purchase commodities, goods and articles produced in Canada, which upon examination are found suitable for their needs. Does not this constitute a fair claim upon men and women who desire to contribute to the economic health of Canada, and between whom and the producer there are consciously or unconsciously partnership relations which are capable of greater development, to the advantage of the Dominion?

Cites Example

If you will take this pencil as a unit representing production, distribution and business generally, the net profit, if any, to each one so engaged is recovered from the small portion of the volume secured at the top, as the profit upon the volume except this moderate surplus at the top is required to pay rent, charges and general expenses. In every province of Canada today there is a percentage of these enterprises, both urban and rural, and in some provinces enterprise. Too many are on the deadline of volume, sufficient only to pay expenses, and in some cases insufficient for even this. What is needed, and the lesson should be brought home to those in charge of the enterprises, as well as those who purchase products, is an added volume at the top. Already the country is expressing hope for better conditions because the excellence of the crop now harvested in every province of Canada will establish an increased buying power. A surprising change would come over the country if there were an increase of 10 per cent. in the volume of its producing, distributing and business enterprises. The major portion of the advance over cost upon this 10 per cent. additional would be net profit, as the volume up to the deadline discharges the expenditures necessary for carrying on the business. The economic relief secured through increased volume in turn-over constitutes an urgent claim upon our people to buy commodities and goods produced in Canada.

Propaganda Not Enough

This movement cannot be successful if it rests chiefly upon sentiment and propaganda. The good sense back of the purchaser of needed commodities will brush these aside, and properly so, unless supported by products having deserved and distinctive merit at fair prices. Let it be frankly said that, to some extent, there has been in the past a claim for support of Canadian products without corresponding sense of responsibility by the producer for quality and price. It is a pleasure to say there has been a remarkable development in recent years in excellence of the home-made products of farm and factory and in their preparation for the market. They cover a wide range of needed goods which have earned the right to claim their purchase by our people, and we should take pride in what has been accomplished. We must go on with this improvement if for no other reason than that others are.

We can well enquire if there is not too great a tendency to depend upon advantages secured from sources other than the producer's own efforts. We have too low a standard of uniform excellence in products. We have the unrest of the agitator in some, and in others too much pleasure-seeking ease, while both hope for betterment which only comes from personal devotion to effort. We need more experience in management and direction, developed by intensive attention co-operatively applied in the day's work on farm and factory and distributing agencies.

The call to buy commodities, goods and articles made in Canada will ultimately succeed in measures as it is underpinned and supported by effort which makes constant claim.

HINTS FOR EXPORTERS TO CHINESE MARKETS

(By L. M. COSGRAVE, Canadian Trade Commissioner.)
(Written in China.)

At this particular time, when China offers perhaps the most important of the newer markets that are open to foreign manufacturers, and something like stabilized conditions have again been obtained, it may not be amiss to point out certain failures on the part of Canadian firms to co-operate with foreign agents in that country, in the hope that these may be remedied and thus enable them to compete with other shippers who have achieved success through a careful study of the market's requirements and a realization of the necessity to meet them. In the minds of native distributors in China, imported goods are usually known by the country of origin rather than by the name of the particular shipping firm.

Shipping Instructions

Importers in China make a practice, when establishing new contracts, of forwarding complete shipping instructions, which if followed and carefully checked would in most cases obviate many of the misunderstandings which are brought to the attention of the trade commissioner.

In distant markets such as China, with ships arriving only once in three weeks or a month, time of shipment and delivery in accordance with instructions is of first importance, particularly in seasonal commodities. Yet cases occur frequently where orders have been confirmed for delivery by a certain time and have not arrived within two months of the confirmed date, resulting in a carry over of the goods to the following season and in refusal on the part of dealers to place further orders. There are also instances where, through some unavoidable difficulty in the home factory, it has been impossible to ship, and in that event, had cabled notification been sent immediately, the agent or importer would have had time to make other arrangements.

Packing

Throughout China and the Far East generally, considerable sales of the same commodity may be made to a number of prominent dealers, each of whom represents an important guild or number of smaller distributors to whom the commodity is known solely by (say) the colour of the container—blue, red or striped—irrespective of the fact that the contents are identical. Importers, therefore, endeavour to arrange with their foreign supplies to meet this arrangement. British, German Japanese and United States exporters are fully acquainted with this market peculiarity and make every endeavour to conform to it, but there have been several instances recently where Canadian firms have refused to change their domestic practice in this respect, despite the fact that the slight additional trouble involved would be repaid in gaining the confidence of their agents. This also applies to request for special wording, stencils or marks, which assist the agent in meeting the peculiar demands of the various districts. It is very discouraging to an agent, when he has been able to secure orders in face of strong competition, not to be backed up by his principals in small points like these.

Labels, Colours, Sizes

When it is considered that in China well over 90 per cent. of the population do not speak English and in many cases only recognize certain simple Chinese characters, it is natural that agents should request that Chinese markings be placed on many manufactured goods, particularly package products. These characters are forwarded by the agent, and can be supplied in any large city throughout Canada at little expense; yet statements of inability to meet the agent's wishes in this respect by Canadian shippers have been noted in the past two or three years—conditions to which exporters in other countries are willing to conform.

It is well known to all traders with this republic that the Chinese have a marked preference—inexplicable to the Western mind—for certain colours; that they will have these and no other. Failure to take account of this preference not infrequently results in repudiation of contract. The agent's instructions should therefore be adhered to in every particular.

In respect of wearing apparel such as knitted goods or shoes, the question of sizes is an ever-present difficulty, due to the fact the Chinese, though of adult height, as classified in Western trade terms, take "youths" or "misses" sizes in chest measurement, feet and hands, and in many commodities therefore it has been necessary to request special sizes. Foreign firms meeting this requirement have found themselves rewarded by large and substantial orders, fully justifying the additional machinery or factory adjustments that have thus been rendered necessary.

Point Illustrated

Two recent instances will illustrate this point. One well-known Canadian firm, manufacturing fleece-lined underwear, who entered the Chinese market some three years ago against strong Continental and United States competition, accepted their agent's recommendations in this respect, necessitating substantial outlay in new machinery. Their co-operation has been rewarded in the past year by securing nearly 50 per cent. of China's total imports of this commodity, despite competition from four countries. On the other hand, a Canadian firm, who had an opportunity of securing business by making the Chinese sizes in certain lines of knitted goods, found themselves unfortunately unable to meet this condition.

In investigations of Chinese requirements during the past few years the Shanghai office has been much impressed with the fact that wherever Canadian or foreign firms give their agents the fullest co-operation and rely on their agent's knowledge of the peculiarities of the market, success in the form of constantly growing orders has usually followed. On the other hand, firms manufacturing thoroughly competitive commodities, which are in increasing demand, remain at a standstill, due in many cases of the fact that they make no effort to meet the distinctive characteristics of the market.

as stated in their agents' advices. A little sympathetic study of the situation as it appears to the man in the field, some adjustment in factory operations, perhaps a little assistance to agents in advertising, and possibly a temporary loss in profits, would in the course of a year or two afford a permanent and growing outlet.

China is now probably entering on a period of stability both political and industrial, which should result in a wide spread demand for Western manufactured products of all kinds. With Canada situated within from seventeen to twenty-four days of this market, as compared with forty to fifty days from Continental markets, competitive Canadian commodities should be able to secure a fair share of the import trade of China, which is valued at $750,000,000 annually.

SHAKESPEARE IN LONDON

(By EDGAR WALLACE)

The stage-door keeper knocked timidly on the dressing room door of the great actor.

"Come in," said the important man.

The man sidled into the room.

"Will you see the party now, sir?"

"Party!" the actor's eyes lit up only to go dull again. "Oh, you mean an individual? Who is he?"

"He's been waiting at the stage door since before the matinee," said the official, with a quiet, understanding smile. "He's the man from the provinces who wrote a play."

The great actor closed his eyes and groaned.

"I can't see him—ask him to write—"

"Excuse me, sir," the stage door man was insistent, "but I saw him talkin' to Mr. Huffer, and Mr. Huffer was makin' notes on the back of an envelope, an' if it gets into the papers..."

The actor sighed.

"I'll see him. Who is he again?"

He searched his overloaded desk and found a manuscript.

"Mr. W. Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon," he read. "Where's Stratford-on-Avon?"

The doorkeeper thought it was somewhere in the Midlands.

"There's a steeplechase meetin' there" he said.

Mr. Spotlight Upstage frowned.

"Show him in," he said, and the man disappeared.

Soon he returned and ushered in a man with a massive forehead ("Obviously a highbrow," murmured Mr. Upstage), a little moustache and an old-fashioned little beard.

"Come in, come in, Mr. What's-your-name. Sit down, won't you, please? You're from—er—?"

"Stratford, in Warwickshire," said the nervous dramatist.

"Yes, yes, of course! My friend, the Marquis of Meauchamps, has a house there. I often shoot over his estate—and isn't there a very good golf course near Stratford—or am I thinking of Bishop's Stortford?"

The man in rusty black didn't know.

With a disparaging smile the actor lifted the manuscript from the table.

"About the play, now—um—'Hamlet,' I see that you call it. The title's all wrong, of course. People will think it is about small holdings or villages. Who is Hamlet?"

"The Prince of Denmark, he was—"

"Yes, yes, of course! I went to Copenhagen with the Earl of Slopshire. A very fine man to hounds." He turned the pages of the script absent-mindedly. "Let me see, you sent me one play—oh, three was it? Now, what did I do with the others—oh, here they are."

Mr. Upstage looked at his watch. He had a good quarter of an hour before he would have to leave the theatre to meet his friend Lady Nuttbrowne, who was the President of the Society for Establishing Character in Working Class Children, of which committee he was a member.

"Now, Mr. Shake—or whatever it is"—

"Shakespeare," said the author. "I might say that I myself have been on the stage."

"Splendid," said the actor without much heartiness. "Now about these plays. They are quite unactable, my boy. Take 'Hamlet'; apart from the fact that there are portions of it that would not get past the censor—do you know Lord Cromer—a delightful personality—it is from the stage point of view wholly impossible. Look at the cast! No management could consider such a production, and the number of scenes! My dear fellow, you have obviously no idea of what theatrical finance is. I am not so sure, that the play is even Good Theatre."

"Not—?" asked the author with a puzzled frown.

"Good Theatre."

"What does that mean?" asked the dramatist.

Mr. Upstage cleared his throat.

"Well—er—I mean—um—a thing is either Good Theatre, or it's not Good Theatre. This is distinctly not Good Theatre. There is another point: do you realize what it would cost to tour 'Hamlet'? I see you don't; and, of course, America would not understand what it was all about, which means that there would be no cinematograph rights to be disposed of."

"But the play itself—do you think that it es—er—er?" suggested the author.

Mr. Upstage shook his head.

"I am afraid not. There are too many murders and too many scoundrels in it for one thing. We are getting rather tired of crook plays."

The dramatist from Stratford-on-Avon looked crestfallen.

"Have you read 'Julius Caesar?' he asked.

"I have glanced at it," said Mr. Upstage. "But the same objection holds. There are thirty-two speaking parts! And only two of these are ladies, both are married, so there is practically no love interest in the play at all. That, of course, is fatal. A play with thirty-two characters and no love interest! 'Hamlet,' I admit, has a love interest, but of a very disagreeable kind, but 'Julius Caesar'—" he shook his head.

"I thought that the dialogue might carry the play," suggested Mr. Shakespeare.

"If it was understood. But, my dear fellow, who would understand it? Look at this," he pointed:

For now, this fearful night, there is no stir or walking in the streets;
And the complexion of the element
In favors like the work we have in hand,
Most bloody, fiery, and most terrible.

He shook his head: "There is at least one word there which would revolt the regular clients of my theatre. No, I am afraid I can't hold out any hope for you. Naturally, in the provinces, you have not the opportunity of noting the tendencies of the London stage. For example, you do not know what is Good Theatre and what is not Good Theatre. This play of yours, 'Macbeth'—people would naturally expect to find some good Scottish humor—and there is not a word of Scotch in the whole of the play! Nothing but murders and goodness knows what. Moreover, it is wildly improbable. It is perhaps, the most improbable play I have ever read."

"Can you offer me any suggestions, Mr. Upstage?" asked the disappointed man from Warwickshire.

Mr. Upstage shrugged his shoulders.

"If you could do a play, a nice little comedy in one scene with about seven characters, with just a touch of, shall I say, melodrama, and, perhaps, a little on the naughty side, well, Mr. Shakespeare, there would be money in it. Good morning."

Mr. Upstage looked at his watch. He was annoyed; he was already two minutes late for his appointment, but he could not, without loss of dignity, be seen walking along the street with that down-at-heel dramatist, so he must perforce wait until Mr. W. Shakespeare was well on his way to Paddington.

THE END OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

By A. E. P.

(From the Manchester Guardian)

(With apologies to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle)

The following account of the real reason for Holmes's retirement was found among Dr. Watson's private papers after his death. It is not dated, but from internal evidence (noticeably the mention of ladies' hatpins) it may be placed about 1903-05.]

It was my intention to close these memoirs with the remarkable chain of circumstances resulting in the marriage of my friend Sherlock Holmes with Miss Falkland. For some time after that event my friend gave up professional work and went abroad with his wife. Our rooms in Baker Street were of course destroyed and my practice occupied my full time, and certainly prospered all the better for receiving my undivided attention. From time to time, however, he would be recalled to my memory by some startling and unexplained case claiming my attention in the morning's paper; and in the 'unforeseen circumstances' and 'unexpected turn of events' or remarkable instances of fresh light being thrown on some obscure point I would recognize my friend's unparalleled genius, though, with characteristic modesty, his name never appeared.

For instance, there was the remarkable case of the Hereditary Princess of Sthoit-Leinengen, which culminated in a royal divorce; and the still more recent affair of the Grand-Nurse-in-Waiting's tame monkey, which made such a stir and resulted in the suicide of a Russian Consul. It was when public excitement was at its height over the great Bribery Case in connection with the Pope's birthday celebrations, and suspicion had settled on a wellknown workhouse official, that I again received intimation that Holmes was in England. I had just come in from a long round when the maid-servant brought in a note whose appearance struck me at once as familiar. As I tore it open I mechanically noticed that it was written on cream-laid paper, with a printed address, and that the stamp was in the right-hand top corner of the envelope. This lapse into a long-forgotten habit made me think of Holmes, and I was not surprised to recognize his signature at the foot of the sheet.

'Dear Watson,' it ran. 'Can you come round to the old place at 3 P.M. to-morrow? — Yours, S. H.'

I hastily scribbled an acceptance, and the following day, having turned over my practice to my assistant and locked the dispensary door for fear of accidents, I hailed a 'City Atlas' and soon found myself en route for Baker Street. (Holmes had taken rooms just above our former locality.)

The door was opened by a tired-looking maid. I entered, and encountered the gaze of a child about three years of age. He was wearing a miniature dressing gown, and had just been taking an impression of the cat's foot in a piece of dough.

Before I had time to speak he had crawled rapidly and noiselessly up the stairs and announced me: 'Pa, there's a man to see you.'

'Who is it?' answered Holmes's voice, and I was struck by the weariness of his tone.

'He's a doctor, poor, and he's got a wife, but she is away. He came up in the omnibus, it was very full, a lady got in too, but he didn't get up to let her have his seat, same as he ought to,' said this remarkable child.

I entered in response to Holmes's invitation. The apartment was thick with tobacco smoke and Holmes was listlessly repairing a string in his violin. He held out his hand with something of his old heartiness, but there was a tired look in his eyes I did not like.

'Ah, Watson, I'm glad to see you again.' Then, following the direction of my glance, 'This is my son.—Sherlock, come and say "How do you do?" to the gentleman.'

'He's quite well; he did have a cold, but that is quite well too, and he didn't put nothin' in the bag 'las' Sunday,' finished this remarkable infant. I turned to Holmes in amazement.

'Oh, he knows,' said my friend rather bitterly; 'there isn't much he can't see. But it is your professional assistance I want you for now.'

Holmes was not the man to take such a step lightly, and my gravest fears were aroused. I glanced keenly at him. His eyes were closed, his temperature was normal, but the pulse was beating in quick irregular jerks, and symptoms pointed to a slight cerebral congestion; an application of the stethoscope showed me at a glance his nerves were all to pieces. He languidly turned up his sleeve.

'No,' I said firmly, laying my hand upon a small hypodermic syringe he had taken from a pocket of his dressing gown, 'I cannot allow any more morphia; you only need rest and a complete change.'

'Heaven knows you're right, Watson, my dear fellow, but how the deuce am I to get it? Can you tell me that?'

I felt that there was something more than appeared on the surface.

'What is it that prevents you—not Moriarty again?'

Holmes looked at me in something of his old manner. 'Watson, Watson, when shall I teach you to eliminate the obviously impossible? We have already twice disposed of Moriarty—once in the Strand, and again at the Lyceum; you will remember the circumstances very well.' He sighed. 'No, it is not Moriarty.'

His eyes wandered to his son, who was scraping the sole of a shoe and examining the matter so obtained by the aid of a powerful lens. 'It was Martha meddled with my specimens, and she said it was the cat,' the infant announced conclusively. His face darkened, and he crawled off after the offending Martha.

Holmes turned to me. 'What do you make of it, Watson?'

I hesitated. 'It is evident he has your talents; it must be very gratifying.'

'Watson, it is killing me. All day long and every hour of the day he is at it. My wife has broken down—nervous system entirely shattered; no one will visit us; we can't keep a servant—they won't put up with it.'

'Surely,' I said, 'it is not so bad as that; he is only a baby—'

Holmes smiled bitterly. 'He contrives to do a good deal in his way. He told the Dean's wife her husband had been married before, and that her diamonds were not real. He took the opportunity of announcing at an At Home that Sir Stepney, that he made his money in patent pills, and that he was afraid of his valet. He took an impression in wax of the Vicar's thumb and subsequently told him that his sermons were not his own, that he had some money on Daystar at the St. Leger, that his niece was a seamstress, and that his brother-in-law was doing time for forgery. He tracked the area policeman for over three weeks to find out where he went when he was off duty—and he told the tax collector his back teeth were false. You have seen for yourself he is after Martha now. She'll give notice next.'

'Why don't you keep him in the nursery?'

'They can't. He outwits them in every possible way. No, there is only one thing to be done: I must take on the job myself. Watson, Watson, if you are a truthful person you will faithfully recount this in the memoirs you are giving to the public. I who have baffled Moriarty, I who have had a hand in unraveling most of the mysteries that have perplexed Europe, with knowledge enough of the seamy side of courts and the back doors of politics to bring about a European war—I am now compelled to turn all my energies to circumventing my own son; and, Watson, it is killing me.'

He plunged his hands deep in his dressing-gown pockets, and his chin fell on his breast.

I crept out softly and closed the door.

Theatrical Saskatchewan

By P. D. EGAN

Theater is from a Greek word meaning to see, to view. The Greek theater was an outdoor affair, capable of seating from 10,000 to 40,000 people. Rising seats were cut like steps in a semicircle on the side of a hill. The spectators sat with their backs to the hill. At the foot was the stage. The objective was not primarily popular amusement. Pericles, Demosthenes used the Theatre in war and peace as a national forum for open discussion of public affairs. Parliament and Congress trace back to the "Theatre" of ancient days.

Today, after more than two thousand years, the Theatre bids fair to rescene, on an infinitely greater scale, the impressive office of old.

Edison started something when he gave us the moving picture.—but, out-Edisoning Edison, the Talking Pictures are, overnight, revolutionising the world and its entire scheme of social economics. Think. Within the past few months the people of Saskatchewan have actually seen in their midst and listened to Mussolini, Foch, Lloyd George, Raymond Poincaré, Bernard Shaw, "Al" Smith, Hoover, Baldwin, Rosenwald!

There's a Forum for you—an intimate, close-up Parliament of the genius and art of the world, living, breathing, speaking before you—in your local Saskatchewan Theatre.

No "old stuff" here either. The introduction and rigid adherence to the practice of simultaneous release of film prints means that we prairie folk have the privilege of enjoying the same pictures on the same dates at New York, Chicago or Toronto. Such keen interest is taken by the world at large in the dramatic adaptation of the sound picture that no effort is spared in having films rushed to the expectant points. On more than one occasion aeroplanes have been used to speed up delivery to Regina.

The enormous transportation effected in the former movie palace by the advent of sound pictures, the incalculably far-reaching possibilities of the "talkies" socially and politically, mean that requirements of the theatre manager are far more exalting. It is no mean responsibility, one that calls for more than technical "show-man" ability, for really every resource of culture, tact and long experience. Saskatchewan in this respect is peculiarly fortunate. In the Saskatoon links you may smile to watch genial Frank Mileg coaxing his ball out of a bunker. And if you know anything of golfing you'll diagnose a great old Theatre manager in Mileg. With him Saskatoon also boasts of a splendid chap in the Manager Stewart of the Victoria Theatre. McMahon, who's a mighty good head too, holds forth in Prince Albert. In the south there's E. P. Fields, "Sack", in Moose Jaw, dignified of carriage and gracious of manner—an ideal host in theatrical and an enthusiastic motorist in moments of leisure. In Swift Current Jack Lundholm—rather meagre of chevelure but darn good with a masher—and Manager Healey hold a good theatrical standard for their ambitious community. Jack McKenzie keeps things moving in Estevan while a genuine Master in Israel is Manager Sutherland in the energetic city of Weyburn. These are but a few of the outstanding men in Saskatchewan who, with our Regina coterie of well-known figures, Major Graham, H. Berchovitch (Rex), Jack Hanna, N. V. Radway (Metropolitan) Knight Wilson (Regina Symphony Orchestra), are making their houses influential centres for the good of the community.

THE UNIVERSITY OBJECTIVE

By Dr. Walter C. Murray, President of the University of Saskatchewan.

When University Education became an issue in the West, the leaders of public opinion decided to avoid the mistakes of eastern Canada. In the Maritime Provinces and in Ontario denominational jealousies had led to the establishment of a number of competing Universities. Small and inefficient. Not until Federation brought Victoria to Toronto was there a promise of a University worthy of a great province.

Manitoba in 1877 established one University for the province and though attempts were made to establish another in Brandon the province and the people steadfastly refused degree conferring wars.

As early as 1904 the Legislative Assembly of the North West Territories, when Mr. Haultain was leader of the Government, passed a University Bill, exempting the Territories for one University, established and supported by the State.

In 1907 the government of the Hon. Walter Scott introduced a bill into the Saskatchewan Legislature to establish in the province a University modelled in the likeness of Toronto, as recast by the University Commission of 1905. This University was to be removed from political control, to be coeducational, non sectarian and to serve the province through teaching, research and extension activities, and to be the sole agent of the province for conferring degrees except in Divinity.

In 1908 the organization of the University was completed. One of the first acts of the new organization was to declare that the University of Saskatchewan would make Agriculture an integral part of its work. Hitherto in Canada Agricultural Colleges had been established apart from the University and been jealous of their isolation. The new venture proved so successful that Alberta and British Columbia speedily followed suit and Manitoba rectified an early mistake by bringing back the Agricultural College into close relations with the University. The Provincial Department of Agriculture under the direction of the Hon. Mr. Motherwell, transferred the educational features of its Extension service to the University.

The University began teaching Arts and Science in 1909 with a staff of five professors and seventy students. Thereafter in rapid succession, Faculties of Agriculture, of Law, of Engineering, of Pharmacy, of Accounting, of the Medical Sciences and of Education were appointed and the attendance rose to over 1000 in the Regular Courses, more than 500 in the Summer School and Evening Classes, and nearly 800 in the Short Courses at the University, in 1926-27. While nearly 20,000 attended Short Courses for adults and boys and girls throughout the province.

The first graduates were sent out in 1912. Before the close of 1927, 1130 men and women had received degrees in the different Faculties and 483 had been awarded certificates for the completion of the Associate Course in Agriculture and the license course in Pharmacy. The large student body is representative of every district of the province of all the creeds and races of the population.

In the selection of the staff stress was laid not only upon character and ability, but also upon training in good graduate schools and evidence of capacity for research as well as for teaching. While the great majority of the staff are Canadians by birth, they with rare exceptions went abroad for graduate work. So that the traditions of the best Universities in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany are represented on the staff. Naturally this meeting of different traditions quickens the intellectual life and must eventually lead to the development of a new type of University, let us hope, rich in the best of the past and responsive to the demands of the new.

The aim of the teaching has been thoroughness. Unless the staff and equipment were adequate for good work in any subject that subject was not taught. In the Sciences, more particularly, this calls for well equipped laboratories as well as well trained professors. The wisdom of this policy has been vindicated by the high quality of the research work done. Though less than twenty years old the University of Saskatchewan has taken an honorable place among the Universities making valuable contributions to Science.

As an illustration of this policy, the work done in Agriculture may be cited. Not only have discoveries been made of the highest importance to Western Agriculture, but men have been trained who in less than a decade have taken high academic positions. Three are on the staff of the Dominion Rust Laboratory, twelve in the Provincial Service, several in the Dominion, nearly a score teaching Agriculture in the Universities and Schools of Canada, and five or six in similar positions elsewhere.

The researches carried on by the departments of Chemistry and Engineering in concrete, more particularly in the deterioration of concrete exposed to alkali waters have been recognized as of the greatest importance. Similarly the contributions made to Genetics and the breeding of a rust resistant wheat, to plant pathology, including the stem rust of wheat and the crown rust in oats, have attracted attention far beyond the borders of Canada. The work done by the Agricultural departments in the introduction of Arctic Sweet Clover, Alfalfa, Corn growing in the South West, in improvement of seed as well as in the improvement of breeds of horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, has been of the greatest service.

Further, the University is the examining body for admission to the professions of Medicine, Law, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Accounting, Optometry, Land Surveying, Architecture, Nursing, Drugless Practitioners and Veterinarians.

REGINA COLLEGE

Regina

The promoters of Regina College have had in mind the enrichment of the citizenship of the West by an educational institution calculated to meet necessities for which adequate provision had not previously been made in the Province.

In the Academic Department students are prepared for School Teachers' Certificates and for Junior and Senior Matriculation, also for the First and Second Years of the Arts and Science Courses of the Provincial University. In the Preparatory Department special help is given to those whose early education was neglected. There is a Special Winter Course by which a good general education and also a business training is provided for young farmers.

The Household Science Department provides a splendid course in Home Economics including Cooking, Dressmaking and Millinery work.

Associated with the College is a fully organized and developed Conservatory of Music leading to the A.R.C.M. and L.R.C.M. diplomas. Provision is made for those who desire to take the Toronto and McGill Conservatory Courses. Instruction is given in practically all branches of Music including Voice, Cornet, Clarinet, Saxophone, Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar. Connected with the Conservatory of Music is also a Department of Expression.

The work of Regina College has been greatly appreciated by the people of Saskatchewan. About six hundred students enrol yearly.

Arrangements are also made for the teaching of expression and a well outlined course in this subject has been provided.

POOL FOR SERVICE

The farmers of Saskatchewan through the Saskatchewan Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited, have developed, in co-operation with the Alberta and Manitoba Wheat Pools, a complete system for the marketing of their grain. In addition to handling the Grower's grain in the most efficient manner possible, as well as exercising a powerful stabilizing influence on the market, the Pool offers a great many important services to Pool Growers. And being a farmer-owned organization it looks after the farmers' interests first, last and all the time.

BETTER LIVING CONDITIONS

To put it plainly the object of the organization is to bring about better living conditions on the farms in Saskatchewan and incidentally this means "Better Living For All". A great deal has already been accomplished, but further progress can, and will, be made. True co-operation will bring this about not only economically, but socially and morally, and well merits the support of every individual in any way he is able.

HISTORY OF CAMPION COLLEGE

In the summer of 1918, Very Reverend John Milway Filion, Provincial of the Canadian Province of the Society of Jesus sent Reverend Thomas McMahon to Regina to found a new college. Two small dwelling houses were rented on Thirteenth Avenue opposite the Cathedral, and in the month of September, the College was opened with one priest, one scholastic, one lay brother and six boys. For a time classes were held in the basement of the Cathedral. By the end of the scholastic year, the number of pupils had risen to twenty-three. At the beginning of the second year, thirty pupils registered with one priest and two scholastics as teachers, Rev. C. Carlin S.J. and Rev. L. Burns S.J. In the course of the second year, it was found necessary to move to more commodious quarters, consisting of four brick houses on Argyle Street, north of Dewdney. These houses with many others had been built by His Grace the Archbishop on the eleven acres originally donated by the two Catholic laymen, in order to produce some revenue for the payment of taxes and other expenses. The four brick houses had purposely been left without the usual partitions in order that they might afford space for class-rooms and dormitories.

The third year began with forty-three pupils and one priest was added to the teaching staff, Rev. Gregory Féré S.J. Two additional houses were taken on the opposite side of Argyle Street.

The beginning of the fourth year found the College established in a new fire-proof brick building, three stories high, on a twenty-acre campus, south of the Legislative Buildings, with sixty-three boarders and ten day scholars. The teaching staff consisted of one priest and three scholastics. A new wing was added in 1923, and was roofed over before the winter.

At present there are 175 boys attending Campion. Five priests, six scholastics and two lay professors form the Faculty.

SYSTEM OF EDUCATION

The educational system in use at Campion College (substantially the same employed in two hundred and twenty-seven educational institutions conducted by the Society of Jesus in nearly all part of the world), is guided by the principles set forth in the "Ratio Studiorum," a body of rules and suggestions outlined by the most prominent Jesuit educators in 1599 and revised in 1832.

Truly psychological in its methods, and based upon the very nature of man's mental processes, it secures on the one hand that stability so essential to educational thoroughness, while on the other it is elastic and makes liberal allowances for the widely varying circumstances of time and place. While retaining, as far as possible, all that is unquestionably valuable in the older learning, it adopts and incorporates the best results of modern progress. It is a noteworthy fact, however, that many of the recently devised methods of teaching, such as the Natural, the Inductive and similar methods, are admittedly and in reality mere revivals of devices recommended long ago in the "Ratio Studiorum."

As understood by the Jesuits, education in its complete sense is the full and harmonious development of all those faculties that are distinctive of man. It is more than mere instruction or the communication of knowledge. The requirements of knowledge, though it necessarily pertains to any recognized system of education, is only a secondary result of education itself. Learning is an instrument of education, which has for its end culture, mental and moral development.

Finally, the Jesuit system does not share the delusion of those who seem to imagine that education, understood as an enriching and stimulating part of the intellectual faculties, has of itself a morally elevating influence in human life. While conceding the effects of education in energizing and refining the student's imagination, taste, understanding and powers of observation, it has always held that knowledge and intellectual development, of themselves, have no moral efficacy. Religion alone can purify the heart and guide and strengthen the will. This being the case, the Jesuit System aims at developing "side by side" the moral and intellectual faculties of the student, and sending forth into the world men of sound judgment, of acute and rounded intellect, of upright and manly conscience. It maintains that, to be effective, morality is to be taught continuously; it must be the underlying base, the vital force supporting and animating the whole organic structure of education. It must be the atmosphere that the student breathes; it must suffuse with its light all that he reads, illuminating what is noble and exposing what is base, giving to the true and false their relative light and shade. In a word the purpose of Jesuit teaching is to lay a solid substructure in the whole mind and character, for any superstructure of science, professional and special, as well as for the upbuilding of moral life, civil and religious.

Moral and Religious Training

In its moral and religious training the College aims at building the conscience of its students for the right fulfilment of their civil, social and religious duties. There is insistence on the cultivation of the Christian virtues which operate for its fulfilment and, as the only solid basis of virtue and morality, thorough instruction in the principles of religion forms an essential part of the system.

New Building

The New Building, thoroughly fire-proof and up-to-date in every respect, is situated at Lakeview, the finest part of Regina, immediately to the south of the Parliament grounds. The new fire-proof wing, added two years ago, doubled the capacity of the college. It furnished increased dormitory space, a splendid chapel, a spacious, well-lighted study-hall and a magnificent recreation hall.

The College provides Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Grades, as well as the Complete College Course. The Eleventh Grade represents Junior Matriculation, and the Twelfth, Senior Matriculation, that is, First Year Arts. By a privilege granted by the University of Saskatchewan, the College provides Second Year Arts. The Third and Fourth Year Arts are devoted to a thorough Catholic Philosophy Course, at the successful termination of which the Degree of Bachelor of Arts is granted by Manitoba University. Special attention is given to Religious Instruction and French and German are taught by thoroughly competent instructors. A fully equipped Physical Laboratory is at hand.

A 20-acre Campus provides ample facilities for sport. Campion has an enviable record in the field of intercollegiate athletics and care is taken that students engage in sports in order to keep them fit and healthy and enable them to develop properly. There are organized leagues in baseball, rugby, basketball and hockey. In winter, the college rink, 180 by 90 feet, provides exercise conducive both to health and, in many ways, to character development. Inter-class games and matches with outside teams and a yearly Field Day of track events furnish the necessary emulation. Besides, physical training classes, as aids to discipline and bodily development, are held three times a week and are compulsory for all.

Student Activities

All the various Student Activities that help to make college life more pleasant and profitable, are in existence at the college. Dramatic, Oratorical and Debating Societies, Orchestra, Choir, Sodalities and others are here for the benefit of the student. "The Campion," the Year Book, stimulates literary activity and serves as a link between the present students and the public, including the Old Boys.

Enforcement of Discipline

The Enforcement of Discipline, while mild and considerate, is unflinchingly firm especially where the good of the student body or the reputation of the college is at stake. While providing external safeguards for the immaturity of youth against license, the discipline is neither severe nor annoying. Only such rules are imposed as good order and common sense make necessary and there is always provided a reason for obedience, thus teaching the two-fold lesson of self-restraint and personal responsibility.

ST. PETER'S COLLEGE

MUNSTER, SASK.

Saskatchewan has like Europe its "Monte Cassino"—in the Benedictine Abbey of Munster.

For fifteen hundred years the Order of St. Benedict has conducted schools in connection with the Monasteries. It was in the Monastery schools that much of the cultural work of the world was done; it was in the scriptoria of these schools that faithful copies of the ancient classics were made and preserved for our day, it was in these schools that so many of the leaders of Church and State found guidance and inspiration; it was in these schools that they received the preparation for complete living which is the aim of all true education.

Benedictive devotion to scholarship, as demanded by the rule of Benedict, resulted in the preservation of precious literature through centuries of burning, plundering and wanton destruction—centuries when monasteries were about the only buildings treated with respect. Venerable Bede, Alcuin and St. Augustine, first Archbishop of Canterbury, were Benedictines. On the Western prairie as in old Europa they remain "a missionary, civilizing, educational body." They have been conducting St. Peter's College since 1903, giving a magnificent moral formation and splendid course in Arts to the one hundred and fifty boys in their care.

GRAVELBOURG COLLEGE

It were impossible that Archbishop Mathieu's gentle hand should not leave its impression upon everything which it touched in the long years of his régime. If he gave to Saskatchewan an institution like Campion College as a centre of intellectual movement, so in the little French town of Gravelbourg he devised a foundation to set forward the French-Canadian conception of the educational and social life of this province. This great undertaking is that of Mathieu College which he has confided to the Oblate Fathers—who find in its spacious walls and fitting sphere for their energies. French-Canada has followed the growth and success of this splendid institution with peculiar interest and affection. To Quebec it is as it were a flaming symbol in the far nor-ouest of the magnificent scholastic traditions of Champlain's vieille province; to the western Franco-Canadians it becomes in tangible form the significant assertion: "La Verendrye, we are here."

Mathieu College gives a classical and commercial course of study. It is affiliated with the University of Ottawa and its curriculum is bilingual. The Rector is Father Guy, O.M.I. and the student body is about one hundred and fifty. A "prep" school is nearby for small boys—as well as the enormous structure of Gravelbourg Convent.

LUTHER COLLEGE OF REGINA

Luther College, which is one of the educational institutions of the Joint Synod of Ohio, today has the honor of ranking second among the colleges of the above mentioned body.

The campus, which consists of eighteen acres, is located on West Dewdney avenue adjacent to the Royal Mounted Police Barracks. In front of the building are found some beautiful fir trees and surrounding the building is some shrubbery. On either side are avenues of trees, which when full grown will add much to the beauty of the building.

influx of applications. This alone shows that Luther College is a progressive institution well advertised by the satisfied students who graduate from there.

Co-education also has been on the increase especially in the last two years. At the present there are over fifty girls in attendance.

The music department under the direction of Miss Elsa Mees also is much larger and this year numbers over 100 pupils. Both theory of music and applied music in violin and piano is taught.

Luther College, Regina.

At the present there is only one building on the campus which is used for both classes and also for dormitory accommodations. This year a drive is to be made for funds to erect a Girls' Dormitory and Gymnasium. Both these buildings are much in need to take care of the ever increasing enrollment.

This year the one hundred and sixty boys and girls in the academic department taxed the class room and dormitory spaces to the utmost and next year promises to be an even better year as can be seen from the

In the academic department students are prepared for the Matriculation Examinations set by the Department of Education for Grades VIII to XII inclusive. Furthermore classes are also taught to prepare the advanced students for the Second Year Arts Examinations set by the University of Saskatchewan. The records of Luther College thus far for the percentage of students who pass these examinations proves the capability of the teaching staff.

The staff and the subjects taught by each member is as follows:

FACULTY OF LUTHER COLLEGE

PRESIDENT REX. SCHNEIDER, B.A., M.A.	History and Philosophy.
PROF. L. PFLUEGER, B.A.	Mathematics.
PROF. H. SCHMIDT, B.A.	Advanced Latin, German and Greek.
PROF. C. E. BEHRENS, Ph.B.	Science and Mathematics.
MR. H. C. MEYER, B.A.	Elementary Latin and Greek.

MR. W. A. ASMAN, B.A.	English.
MISS ELSA MEES, B.S.	Music and Mathematics.
MISS EMILIE WALTER	Grade IX.
MISS AGNES SCHEFFLER	Grade VIII.

Another praiseworthy asset of Luther College which every thoughtful parent should consider is the religious training offered. During the growing years of a child's life it is very important that the religious education be not neglected if the child is to grow up to be a useful citizen of his country.

Moreover the various extra-curricular activities, such as: the Boys' and Girls' Glee Club; the School Orchestra; the English and German Literary Societies; the school paper, the Luther Canadian; Hockey, Base-ball and Physical Training at the Y.M.C.A. All offer the student a chance to broaden and to better prepare himself to meet better the social conditions which he will encounter in life.

Finally the reasonableness with which all the above mentioned advantages may be obtained makes it possible for many parents of moderate circumstances to send their children to an institution, where they may be assured the best of care is given.

The College has its own boarding club thus cutting living expenses to the minimum.

The city students of Regina and the surrounding towns of Saskatchewan make up the largest percent of the enrollment but every year more students from the other provinces see the advantage of entering Luther College.

Investment Experts

"CANADA PERMANENT" Bonds, in addition to being an absolutely safe security, are issued as required by investors, for periods and in sums to meet the needs of each individual. Investments in these Bonds considerably exceed $25,000,000.00.

They are at present being issued bearing interest at per annum, payable half-yearly. Compared with the yield obtainable on other high-grade securities and having in mind the trend towards lower yields, this is an attractive rate of interest.

UKRAINIAN COLLEGE

YORKTON, SASK.

At Yorkton there is a peculiarly unique institution—the only college on the American continent having for objective the education of the Ukrainian boy.

St. Joseph's College represents an investment of some two hundred thousand dollars; the building is substantial, fire-proof and with accommodation for over a hundred boarders. A large terrain adjacent to the college is devoted to campus where the student body give themselves to Canadian sport. Extensive lawns, beautiful shrubberies and wide boulevards make it one of the beauty spots of the province. The Brothers of the Christian Schools are in charge—a world-wide teaching order. They are developing a section of their order to take up Ukrainian education exclusively and already three young Ukrainians have joined the Brotherhood and are preparing to give their lives gratuitously to the service of their people. At present the college has one hundred and twenty students drawn from almost every province in Canada. The great majority of course are Ukrainian, with a handful of English-speaking lads. Perfect harmony reigns and association of these youngsters of different nationalities is bringing them to appreciate each other and to prepare themselves to work side by side. The course of studies followed is that set by the Department of Education for the Saskatchewan Public and High Schools. And the pupils are proud indeed of their achievement in the government examinations. Right from the College's inception it has been practically an annual performance for several of the boys to complete their High School course leading to Normal and the University in nothing more than two years.... a distinctly creditable undertaking when one recalls the limited knowledge of the average young Ukrainian of the English language. The students are likewise given a thorough course in Ukrainian history, literature and religion—as the Staff considers that familiarity with their mother tongue and a deep reverence for the beautiful customs and traditions will make of the Ukrainian boy the highest type of Canadian citizen. The College is most fortunate in having on its staff Wm. Bossy, admitted to be the ablest and most influential lay

Ukrainian in the nine provinces. Untiringly he has given his energies to save his people from the insidious influence of bolshevist thought into which divers groups of radicals who long since should have been deported have sought to lead them. The Rector of the College is Brother Stanislaus and with him are associated Brothers Henry, Paul, Anthony, Luke, Methidius Athanasius.

ST. CHAD'S COLLEGE

The Theological College for the Diocese of Qu'Appelle is situated on College Avenue, Regina. Fifteen acres of land were purchased from the Provincial Government, on part of which the College is built. It is a very handsome structure of red brick with terra cotta dressings. The building which includes a Warden's residence in the east wing and the College Chapel in the west wing, is a free rendering of the English College style. There is room for thirty resident students besides the staff and servants. It is one of a group of buildings which the Anglican Communion hopes to erect on the site purchased from the Government. The Synod and Clergy houses have also been built on this site.

The College Building is temporarily used for the Diocesan Girls' School and the Theological Students occupy the St. Cuthbert's House adjoining the College.

THE "SPLENDOUR" OF CANADA

"The splendour of the surroundings in which your life is set is so dazzling that it is a vain repetition of words to attempt to describe it. It has the delicate beauties of woodland and quiet countryside. It has the immensity of the prairies and the fierce grandeur of the Rockies. Age cannot wither nor custom stale its infinite variety. No one but a great poet could duly rehearse the story of the outward semblance of Canada. Great countries deserve and will produce great minstrels For a people of less than ten millions, the figures of production and your foreign trade are really astonishing. Yet the mind almost at once leaves the ground of facts to speculate upon your great untouched and untapped resources, on the millions of acres of virgin land, of the mines and factories yet to be. No wonder that the pulse of life beats strongly in your veins, that the great dominant note of your people is confidence and buoyancy, and that you inspire all your visitors with the same facts."

A NATIONAL EVENT OF WORLD-WIDE IMPORTANCE

Speculation in all its forms is frowned upon by the leaders of our great financial, industrial and commercial organizations, and yet, how many look with anything but complacency upon the greatest gamble of our times and do little or nothing to alleviate existing conditions? When the farmer sows his crop he trusts to Providence that it will be spared the ravages of frost, rust, floods, drought, insects, bacteria and fungus and so yield him a profitable return. In taking all these chances the farmer is truly no mean gambler. During the past few years the farmers of Western Canada have lost hundreds of millions of dollars by frost, rust, grasshoppers, cut worms, root rot, saw flies, wire worms, etc., etc. Scientists throughout the world are doing much good work to overcome these handicaps to prosperity, but as yet only a good start has been made and little is known by the farmers themselves about what has been accomplished. Governments and experts are working diligently now to solve the problems and it is hoped that within the next three or four years much valuable information will be ready for dissemination. You can imagine what a wonderful thing it will be to bring to one gathering place the experts from all parts of the world so that they may confer together and convey to the public their discoveries.

With this object in view, the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference has been organized. The great event will be held July 25 to August 6, 1932, at Regina, Saskatchewan. The selection of the place has been endorsed by the people of Canada as being the most central point in the large grain-growing area of the North American Continent. Over sixty countries will be requested to permit their leading investigators to attend the Conference. A dozen lecture halls will be provided with seating accommodation varying from fifty to 20,000 people. A complete list of the Conference sections has not been made, but some of these already provided are as follows:—

(a) AGRONOMY:

1. Soils.
2. Physics.
3. Chemistry.
4. Bacteriology.
5. Cultural Methods.
6. Weeds.

7. Plant Breeding and Genetics.
8. Diseases of Plants.
9. Experimental Methods.
10. Seed Production and Registration.
11. Farm Management and Costs.
12. Fertilizers.

(b) ERADICATION OR CONTROL OF INSECT PESTS.

(c) AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY:

1. Cleaning.
2. Cultural.
3. Harvesting.

(d) MARKETING:

1. Grading Systems.
2. Merchandising and Financing.

(e) MILLING AND BAKING.

It will not be necessary to elaborate upon these sections at this time, as you are no doubt already able to visualize the wonderful possibilities of the Conference.

To provide a spectacular side to the event, and to create a more wide-spread interest, it is proposed to hold an exhibition in conjunction with the Conference. There will be competitive exhibits, Government displays, educational exhibits and commercial displays, together with the Annual Provincial Exhibition of Saskatchewan, which will be held on concurrent dates. For the competitive grain exhibits, between $200,000.00 and $300,000.00 will be offered in prizes, with competition open to the world. You may judge of the high standard of the prize list when we state that for Hard Red Spring Wheat, the first prize will be not less than $2,500.00, with fifty prizes in the class and the lowest prize fifty dollars. The many other classes will be provided for in like fashion according to their commercial importance. In the course of preparation for the Exhibition, it is expected one million copies of the prize list will be required for distribution.

The financing of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference will be a tremendous task, as the cost is estimated at over $5,000,000.00. The Federal Government has promised assistance of a financial nature in keeping with the importance of this world event. From the Saskatchewan Government and the City of Regina we expect generous treatment. The Regina Exhibition Association will provide the accommodation involving an outlay for new building of up to $400,000.00. The financial assistance now in sight is based upon estimates which cannot be accurate, as there are no precedents upon which such estimates can be based. As an illustration, the budget for 1929 provides for the printing and distribution of 100,000 copies of the prize list. Since these figures were set, we have been requested by a Saskatchewan organization to supply them with 120,000 copies of the list which they will mail to farmers in their province.

We believe the large financial, industrial and commercial organizations of Canada will be deeply interested in this great project and will consider it a duty as well as a pleasure to contribute and have a part in making successful the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, and thereby doing something towards increasing the prosperity of all the people in Canada. Our objective from these sources is $500,000. In the near future we hope you will allow us the privilege of waiting upon you and discussing this important matter in more detail.

"PAN-AMERICA, ALL EUROPE, ASIA AND ORIENT"

By A. E. WHITMORE.

Involving a budget of probably $5,000,000, the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, to be held in Regina from August 1st to 13th, 1932, will be the greatest event of its kind ever attempted by any country.

Backed by the Dominion government, the Provincial governments, the transportation companies, the organized farmers, the press, and financial, industrial and commercial organizations, this all-Canada enterprise will not only attract the best of Canada's granary but for the first time in history will gather together the best grain of all classes from all corners of the earth.

The prize list will amount to over $200,000. In each "A" class it is planned to offer fifty prizes, the highest amounting to $2,500 and the lowest $50. Farmers from all parts of Canada and the United States as well as from more than fifty other countries will enter their best samples in the various competitions which are being planned on a world-wide basis, standard grains from all quarters of the globe being recognized.

Experts from all parts of the world will foregather at the Conference to discuss the varied problems that beset the growers of the world's food supply. Agronomists of world renown will discuss such matters as soils, plant breeding, plant diseases, cultural methods, weed control and eradication. Research scientists will discuss their experiments and discoveries, while other skilled investigators will tell what the world is doing to combat the insect menace. World market requirements, grading problems, storage and transportation methods, marketing problems and farm machinery, together with many other kindred subjects will be discussed by men of established reputations at the Conference. In short, the Conference will be practically something unique, offering as it will a two-week course in world agriculture.

The best samples of grain that can be grown between now and 1932 will be eligible for the various competitions. Already many farmers who have won international honors in the grain world are busy preparing to win some of the coveted world championships in 1932.

Many are concentrating on the best seed they can find and making special efforts to keep their farms free from weeds so that the natural fertility of the Canadian soil may have every opportunity of growing grain of exceptional quality.

An attendance of about 750,000 people during the two weeks of the exhibition and conference is anticipated, and Regina will be ready to house this vast throng adequately and comfortably.

It is difficult to over-estimate the value of the 1932 Conference to Canada's basic industry of agriculture. That it will have important and far reaching effects upon agricultural methods in the Dominion cannot be doubted. Men of international reputation will give the Canadian farmer the benefit of experience gained in other countries in combatting common problems and the agricultural world will take stock of the situation as it presents itself in 1932.

Recognized as the greatest national exhibition ever undertaken in Canada, the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference is being staged right in the heart of the world's greatest wheat producing province where producers of Canadian grains will have every opportunity of concentrating their attention on every phase of the undertaking. Serious thinkers in the agricultural world recognize the need for the adoption of scientific methods of farming so that the high standard of the Canadian produce may not only be maintained but improved, and the speakers at the Conference will give impetus to the development of better farming methods, the adoption of which will tend to promote the prosperity of the people of Canada.

"Ku Klux Klan" in Saskatchewan

The Saskatchewan farmer has found that his economic salvation lies in co-operation. The pools have made him more independent of politics than he has been at any time in the history of the country. It is the writer's firm conviction that the great influence of the United Farmers and of the wheat pool is going to be swung against a vote for the disruptive tendencies involved in an appeal to religion and racial prejudice. The pools know no race, no religion, no creed. Their aim, and that of their parent organisation, is co-operation—co-operation between all classes of the community. Only by the closest co-operation can the pools survive. Co-operation cannot exist with a great wedge driven between neighbouring farmers. The Klan will get votes in the urban communities; the Conservatives will probably gain a few seats where the voting was previously close and where a constituency contains a large town vote. But it is the firm conviction of this writer that unless the Klan succeeds in penetrating the heart of rural Saskatchewan it will gradually lose influence. If it makes little impression on the complexion of the next legislature it will cease to be more than a fraternal organization. If it should succeed in controlling the next legislature, even without appearing in the election as a body, one can look for disquieting times in Saskatchewan, unless it should feel that it has achieved its end and quietly disappear.

Political prophecy being the most gratuitous form of folly, it may be as well to leave the situation at that.

Sitting Bull Park

Some two score odd years ago five thousand American Sioux Savages, their naked bodies glistening with the ochres of war paint, their loins girdled with freshly-lifted scalps, led their mounts to water in a coulee about three miles south of Moose Jaw. They were Sitting Bull's braves—come to seek refuge on the soil of the Great White Queen after the historic Custer affair.

On May 25th 1929 Saskatchewan will recall, on the Great Queen's fête, the stirring incident of old Sitting Bull by dedicating a vast Animal Park to his name and memory. The site of the park comprises some five hundred Acres of land, heavily wooded, really the most picturesque valley in the south of Saskatchewan; and through it winds the beautiful Moose Jaw river—where years ago the Sioux hordes found a resting place after their dramatic migration from the United States.

Associated with the inauguration of the Park will be the staging of historic pageants commemorating of the heroic past of Saskatchewan. The Dominion authorities are sponsoring the undertaking. The famous Red-Riders of the Plains will take part. Indian Commissioner Graham is allowing his dusky children of the Reserves to don their ancient tribal accoutrement and it is rumoured that Long Lance and Irvin Cobb of Saturday Evening Post fame may be present. Father Athol Murray will handle the pageantry events.

Now as to the Park—it is a Saskatchewan not a "Moose-Jaw" affair. Yet T. V. Emerson, W. G. Ross, Frank McRitchie, H. G. Hurlburt of Moose Jaw have been the moving spirits of its creation.

Fifty years ago buffalo, elk, moose, antelope and deer roamed freely through the valley, grazed on its flats and on the slopes adjoining. In the latter seventies and early eighties civilization approached and the wild game gave place to great agricultural development. Today, after half a century, the people of Saskatchewan and Canada are erecting a monument to the past in the shape of this new and beautiful park. The park is now provided with an 8 foot page wire fence, constructed at a cost of $5,000.00, by the Sarnia Fence Co. Through the kindness of the Dominion Government and the authorities in charge of the National Park at Banff, the Park has been equipped with herds of buffalo, deer, elk, antelope, bear and other principal prairie animals. Sitting Bull Park is indebted to Mr. J. A. M. Patrick of Yorkton, for his splendid gift of some English fallow deer and for hatching eggs of the several varieties of wild geese which once were so plentiful on the Plains nearby. The whole Park area, together with all land for a distance of 3 miles outside its boundaries, has been made a game preserve and every effort is being made to make this preserve a sanctuary for every species of bird life as well as for the animals referred to.

The land has been placed at the disposal of the Sitting Bull Park Association by one of Saskatchewan's most generous public spirited citizens, Mr. John R. Green of Moose Jaw. Both Mr. Green and his genial wife have gone to no end of trouble in assisting with the details of the preliminary work necessary in getting the Sitting Bull Park under way.

THE WORLD'S PETROLEUM PROBLEM

(Condensed from The Review of Reviews by "The Reader's Digest.")

JUDSON C. WELLS

Petroleum is a marvelously versatile resource. Transportation by land and sea, by air, and undersea, is so dependent on it that it is becoming a prime factor in determining the political security, the military power and the industrial rank of nations and empires.

Thus increasingly dependent upon petroleum supplies, the world recognizes that those supplies are limited, irreplaceable, and liable to disastrous depletion. Such is the avidity wherewith powerful states have been seeking, since the World War, to insure their petroleum supplies, that no backward or small country which finds itself suddenly rich in this resource can feel entire political security.

The huge industrial fabric based on petroleum was founded in the United States. Year by year roundly 70 per cent. of petroleum produced by the world is produced and used in the United States. This situation has long been responsible for fears less becoming increasingly dependent upon this element, our country should some time confront a supreme disaster with its depletion. It was recognition of this possibility that induced President Coolidge's establishment of the Oil Conservation Board.

Right at the height of our wartime productiveness, when American oil was a chief factor of Allied power, an eminent British authority voiced the claim that, while America had been exhausting its oil riches, the British Empire had been acquiring control of such huge oil resources that Britain was surely destined to an early dominance in this field. But no more had the Conservation Board been created than the whole picture suddenly changed.

New and rich oil fields were discovered and opened in various parts of this country. Improved manufacturing, notably "cracking", greatly increased the recovery of the most valuable petroleum constituents. Better field methods began to increase the proportion of oil brought forth from the oil sands. All these things presently brought about a feast where famine had threatened, oversupply where shortage had been feared. To the industry, here and abroad, these conditions were demoralizing. Prices fell, oceans of oil went into storage, waste was inevitable.

The industry, from being hostile to governmental regulation and the measures to limit production, began to demand these. But the difficulties—constitutional, legal, economic, traditional—seemed well-nigh insuperable. Such is substantially the situation today; such it has been for more than two years past.

This oil picture of America must be kept in mind to enable one to understand a closely parallel world situation now fast developing. An epoch of over-production is in sight, everywhere, if not yet begun.

Rather more than 96 per cent. of oil is produced in eight countries. In order of importance they are: the United States, Venezuela, Russia, Mexico, Persia, Roumania, Dutch East Indies and Colombia. All these heavily increased their production from 1922 to 1928. It has been authoritatively estimated, for instance, that at the recent rate of increase Venezuela alone by 1932 would produce as much oil as the whole world did in 1917.

Nearly all the powers in the oil world are active in Venezuela—the Standard group of the United States, several of the great American independents, and the Royal Dutch-Shell. The Dutch-Shell holdings are the largest; said to be, in fact, the greatest producing property ever held by a single company in the history of the industry. The fact that these companies, foreseeing over-production, have been able to come to an agreement limiting production in Venezuela, is one of the most hopeful signs of the international situation.

To understand the trend in this direction, it is necessary roughly to appraise the great factors. Companies of the Standard group have large holdings in Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela, Iraq, Persia, and, of course, in the United States. Before the war they were deeply interested in Russia and are still pressing claims against the Soviet for confiscating their holdings there. Many American independents are entrenched in outlying parts of the world, alongside Dutch-Shell, Anglo-Persian, and the Standards.

The Dutch-Shell combination of more than 125 affiliated corporations in production, refining, shipping, marketing, exploration, is often accounted the greatest single oil corporation in the world. The chief units are the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company and the Shell Transport & Trading Company. Founded in Holland, it has since come under British control through Lord Bearsted and Sir Henry Deterding.

Sir Henry Deterding is a native of Holland. In Europe he is accounted the greatest individual force in the oil world, and is called the Napoleon of oil. The Shell group is very powerful in the United States, controlling some of the biggest of American producing, refining and marketing organizations.

Next to the Dutch-Shell, the foremost non-American producer is the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, now headed by Sir John Cadman. Like Deterding, he is on friendly terms with the American industry.

If Deterding is the Napoleon, Cadman is the Tallyrand of European oil; scholar, diplomat, amazing negotiator. In 1914 he was a university professor. He convinced Winston Churchill that direct control of oil by the government was necessary to insure British sea and air power, and Churchill in turn induced the British cabinet to buy control of the Anglo-Persian.

In 1921 Cadman, addressing the American Petroleum Institute, urged co-operation and understanding on a world basis. No less scandalous than the waste in oil production, he said, is the waste in distribution. Pointing out that Persian oil goes to Iceland, to Australia, and to England, he declared it all wrong and urged that each producing region should care for its logical producing area and keep out of the others.

Russia is the enigma of the world's oil game. Controlling enormous resources, the Soviets have steadfastly refused to return or settle for confiscated properties. Greatly needing money and having in oil their most promising cash crop, they have cut prices and demoralized markets. With Russia co-operating, the outlook for stabilizing world conditions would be vastly better.

Nowadays efforts at large co-operation are motivated more by concern for the industry's prosperity than by the fear of exhaustion of oil supplies. Where pessimists a few years ago feared exhaustion in possibly 20 or 30 years, one eminently respectable authority declared recently that there was now oil in sight to supply the world for over 3000 years!

Before any shortage comes industrial and economic changes will undoubtedly have made it possible to produce oil commercially from the almost unlimited stores of oil-bearing shales and from coal and lignite. The Germans have made such progress in the latter direction that they will shortly be able to supply their motor fuel requirements from that source.

THE NATION AND SPORT

By HON. J. M. UHRICH

"PLAY THE GAME!" Newbolt

It were nothing short of a calamity were Canada to remain indifferent to the overwhelming significance of Sport as a vital factor in the creating of national consciousness.

A month ago we listened in—in Saskatchewan—to the address in Montreal of Sir Henry Thornton to Scout Patrol Leaders. We listened attentively—because Thornton has shown himself a big man—as big as any on this continent, and he has done big things in a big way for Canada. "We are trying to build here a nation," he said. "Distances and sectionalism are the obstacles to be overcome. It yet remains to be seen if we can overcome them. Our main security is in the keenness and earnest spirit of leadership among our youth. Ability, yes—but I would stress rather their initiative in mixing with their fellows."

Saskatchewan has exemplified national consciousness splendidly in her boys, quite on their own, visiting the sister provinces for encounters in sport activities. Sir Henry Thornton last year engineered the tour of the Regina Aces' Hockey Club through the Maritime Provinces and repeated the idea this year with the Moose Jaw Tigers. Well, that's something—and the historic ramblings of the Regina Argos' little ball-team through the highways and by-ways of Quebec and Ontario, Alberta and Manitoba were an inspiring crusade for "pull-together" Canadianism. But it must take more than these spasmodic efforts to break down the self-sufficiency of the Eastern provinces. It took a Civil War to arrive at national consciousness in the States. One would have thought Canada had paid dearly enough in Flanders for a right national spirit. Yet the weakness, merely regional if you will, that tolerated within the past year acquiescence in cheap "Klanism" from the south indicates that Sir Henry Thornton is right in saying that it still remains to be seen if Canada can overcome sectional puerility and play the game as a nation.

This thing—playing the game is what we call Sport.

From the dawn of human experience man has found Sport necessary to his existence.

Mere wealth cannot achieve the sea-to-sea success Canada hopes to exemplify.

Railroads, agricultural production, great manufactures are national beneficiaries; but they reach the Body—not the Soul.

Great spiritual influences are creed and race—yet do they emphasize rather than pull together group and region.

The spirit of Sport alone gives wholesome exuberance and moral consciousness to the whole nation.

Throughout the ages, Sport, in Egypt, Athens, Rome, modern Europe, has moved hand in hand with the civilization. Wherever man has thought, studied, built schools and held life sacred, Sport has made great strides; Wherever the people were enslaved by sensuality, contented ignorance

Inter-varsity Track

The annual inter-varsity track meet was held this year at Manitoba and it was an epoch as far as inter-varsity track is concerned. This was due to the fact that Alberta won the championship, giving them possession of the cup which has hitherto graced no other halls but those of Manitoba. They have won the cup every year since the meet was inaugurated, so that the fact that Alberta won it right in Manitoba's own territory is a real treat indeed even though Saskatchewan was a little behind.

Alberta certainly had a real team due chiefly to the addition of Harold Wright of Regina to the team. Manitoba had several of their old reliables back but could not overpower the well balanced Albertans.

Saskatchewan had an entire new team except for one old standby in the person of Orval Gratias who was runner-up to Wright for the individual championship gaining 14 of Saskatchewan's 20 points. Maguire, Nicolls, Farstead, Fodor, and Asher were other members of the team. They are all new in inter-varsity competion so that we may look for great things from them next year.

Ladies' Inter-varsity Track

Three years ago the W.I.A.U. with fear and trembling agreed to the inter-direction of ladies' events to the track meet. The first year Saskatchewan let Manitoba carry away the honors. The following year competition was keener, Alberta taking first place with 22 points, Manitoba securing 21 and Saskatchewan 20.

This year it was Saskatchewan's turn to win the coveted honors and we did. Due to the constant coaching of Miss Alexander, Head of the ladies physical training department, supplemented with Joe Griffith's work head of the men's physical training department during the summer. The travelling team consisted of Dorothy McKenzie and Grace Taylor of Year 1929, Winnie Rowles, Marion Wylie, and Lorna Rutherford of Year 30 and Dorothy Rutherford and Eileen Foley of year 32.

Our versatile Dorothy Rutherford was the outstanding athlete among the ladies, winning the individual championship by her prowess in running and jumping. She established two records in the 220 yard dash and the broad jump.

Saskatchewan's third record was made by Winnie Rowless when she exceeded by four feet the Javelin record which was made at Saskatchewan by Francis Green in 1926.

The points totalled were as follows:

The high lights of the green and white 1928 grid season were the winning of the first intercollegiate game since the inauguration of the W.C.I.R.F.U. in 1927, and the annexation of the city championship.

In playing the opening fixture of the intercollegiate series played against Alberta in Edmonton the Green and white met the Westerners at bay until the dying moments of the game when the green and gold broke away for a lucky touch down and an 8-1 victory. Nothing daunted the green and white fought like tigers to stop the Manitoba steam roller at Cairn's field on the following Saturday. Returning to Winnipeg, Manitoba received a five point victory and in the closing game of the season the Saskatchewan team fought gamely but were unable to hold the fast travelling Alberta squad.

In addition to the intercollegiate series the green and white played in a three game series with the junior Hilltops and had no difficulty in winning two out of three for the city championship.

All in all, the season's statistics show a decided improvement when compared with the victory-less 1927 season. This can be attributed to the ten days of pre-season training, during which the squad simply lived football, not only improving physical condition and gridiron technique, but also building up a real club spirit.

When the 1929 squad is called out this fall, captain Johnny Riches, Fred Alexander, Red Thackery and Stan Carpenter, the senior member of the Carpenter family on the squad, will have passed from our halls. All four will be greatly missed.

The teams will also be without the fatherly guidance of professor Hardy who has managed green and white teams for many years and who will be away on his Sabbatical year.

Great credit for the success of the squad during the past season is due to the popular coach Eddie K. Phillips, Kent During his first season, has instilled into the boys a real fighting spirit which will take a long time to be broken. He inaugurated the new training system which has proven so successful.

Jim Campbell popular quarter back of the 1928 club has been elected Captain of the next year's squad and plans are already being laid for the season in which it is hoped to bring the Hardy trophy hoe.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM

Varsity Basket Ball

Varsity basketball this year is meeting with varied success owing to the loss of last year's stars. A new machine had to be built up and this could not be done in a day. However due to the untiring efforts of Ray Frey, Varsity coach, the boys have now struck their stride, and have every hope of copping the city league honors again. Manitoba is already assured of retaining the Rigby trophy emblematic of Western intercollegiate honors, as a result of victories over Saskatchewan and Alberta. However Saskatchewan gave them a good battle and are confident of taking second place when they meet Alberta at Edmonton.

The support given to the senior team has been very gratifying, and the keen interest taken in basketball is shown by the number of students playing in the various leagues.

Varsity also has an entry in the city intermediate league under the able management of Phil Morse. So far the boys have lost only one game, and are assured of a place in the play-off.

Men's Swimming

For the last several years, men's swimming has been one of Saskatchewan's strongest sports. It is quite evident from the number of swimming stars that have left the Varsity each year without Saskatchewan losing her pre-eminence in this sport that much of the credit is due to Joe Griffiths as coach. Each year new and better swimmers have been developed, and in the last four years Varsity has won the Western Canada championship at either Banff or Edmonton, three times. At the inter-varsity meet held at Edmonton this year, Saskatchewan was represented by Alf Bence, Ossie Doak, Lloyd Hackney, Don McBurney, Arn Millar and Ivor Strong. The team clearly demonstrated their superiority by winning the meet by a 39—24 count, with McBurney and Hackney tied for individual honors. Not satisfied with this, the next day, the boys arranged a meet with the West end Swimming Club of Edmonton, who had won the championship of the Banff Winter Sports Carnival against some of the best swimmers of the west. In spite of the meet on the day previous, Varsity swamped the Edmonton stars by a score of 42—22. Don McBurney was again individual champion with Millar one point behind. As a result of these triumphs there is every reason in the world why Saskatchewan should go farther afield for more serious competition.

Ladies' Swimming

A greater interest than ever was taken this year in ladies' swimming. This was due to a number of reasons, the influx of a number of good swimmers, the inauguration of monthly swimming meets, and intercollegiate competition at Edmonton. Four inter-year meets were held before the big event of the year, so that by the time of the Edmonton invasion the girls were travelling at a great clip. The team that made the trip included Lillias Crawford, Eleanor Martin, Marion Bie, Ruth Wilson, Dorothy Bond, and Dorothy McKenzie. But although they captured the honors in breast stroke, diving, relay and plunge, the green and white aggregation was forced to take second place in a very close exciting meet.

Men's Hockey

This year saw the welcome return of senior hockey to the U. of S. after a lapse of a year. As there was only a limited budget provided for hockey, it was decided to support but one team. With the best prospects for competition coming in the junior field, a junior team alone was formed. However, before the season was under way, the Saskatoon Hilltops disbanded, and a schedule could not be arranged with the Wesleys. An attempt was then made to strengthen the team to intermediate calibre for competition with outside teams from Regina and other places. Any such competition failed to materialize, however, so that it was decided to try and dish up some inter-collegiate hockey for the Varsity fans. Thanks to the efforts of professor Gordon and the W.C.I.A.U., a game was arranged with Alberta and a senior team was organized. The game was a complete success from Saskatchewan's viewpoint. The result was a 5-1 win, with Saskatchewan earning the margin. The Varsity played only two other games during the season, one with the Normal school and one with Wesley, both of which Varsity won, by scores of 4-0 and 3-2, respectively. With a new rink assured for next year, and nearly all this year's stars returning, it appears that Saskatchewan's University is out to make a name in hockey.

INDIVIDUAL SWIM CHAMP

DON McBURNEY

Don, a Saskatoon boy and in his third year at Varsity, has made real progress towards the top of the swimming ladder. At the Alberta University meet held at Edmonton, he copped the individual honors, with Arn Millar from Saskatchewan running him a close second. McBurney also obtained the highest number of points at the Edmonton city meet, competing against stars from the Banff Winter sports meet.

INDIVIDUAL CHAMP

DOROTHY RUTHERFORD

Dorothy Rutherford hails from Saskatoon. In her first year at the University she was the outstanding athlete among the ladies, at the W.C.I.A.U. meet held at Manitoba in the fall of 1928. Dorothy won the individual championship by her prowess in running and jumping. And at the same time established two records, the 220 yard dash and the broad jump.

ATHLETIC COACH

JOE GRIFFITHS

Better known as "Genial" Joe about the campus, where he has held the position of physical instructor for the past ten years. Mr. Griffiths has two Western Canada Intercollegiate swimming championships to his credit, and due to his position as director of Saskatchewan Inter-high school meets, has kept in close touch with track and field athletes. Many budding contestants in the athletic world owe their start to Joe Griffiths' careful handling.

Ladies' Hockey

Great interest was taken in ladies' hockey, partly due to the presentation for the first time of the Eaton trophy for competition in the Saskatoon City League, and partly because the girls had trips to both Manitoba and Alberta in the inter-collegiate loop. In the City League, Varsity demonstrated their superiority by going through the season without a loss, to be the first winner of the new Eaton trophy. In an exhibition game with Alberta, before the opening of the inter-collegiate schedule, Saskatchewan dropped a hard fought game by the score of 2-1. However, in their first league game, the girls travelled to Manitoba and played the strong Eastern team to a one all tie. Then in the second game against Alberta, the girls gained a 1-0 decision to earn a tie with Manitoba for the leadership. Owing to the lateness of the season, a play-off could not be arranged so the championship was left undecided.

ALL ROUND CO-ED CHAMP

Dorothy, a product of Swift Current, has proved herself the best all round athlete of the fair sex. Her three years at Varsity has been a brilliant one, she being not only athletically inclined, but has worked at the same time on many responsible executive positions throughout her term at the Green and White. Besides being a tennis player of note, Dorothy also held down major positions on the following Varsity teams: Girls' Hockey, Girls' Basketball, Girls' Swimming and Girls' Track.

EATON SERVICE IN SASKATCHEWAN

*Heavy Goods Mail Order Houses, Stores and to Interpret the Meaning of the Word

"SERVICE" in its Fullest Sense*

Month by month the news tells of this transformation—the building of a new store here—acquiring a store there—the opening of a new grocery or perhaps a smaller Teco store. It's a case of carrying out the old Eaton idea of service inaugurated over fifty years ago—the greatest good to the greatest number of people.

And what is the meaning of Eaton service—of what does it consist?

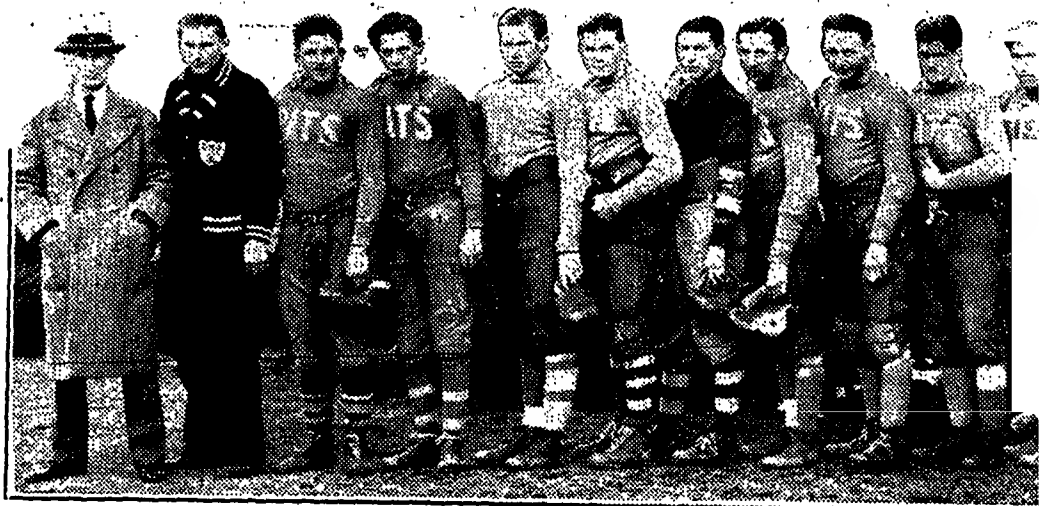

1—The pleasure of shopping by mail as well as in person, and knowing in each case goods must be right or money will be refunded.

2—The assurance that Eaton goods are always new goods—goods hurried to the Eaton stores and mail order houses from the market places of the world.

3—Knowing Eaton prices are cash prices—and being cash prices are figured to the advantage of the shopper because cash business cuts the cost of merchandising to essential costs only.

4—Knowing that no matter how low the pendulum of prices swings, quality is always considered of major importance.

Provincial Athletic Review

By JOE DWYER,

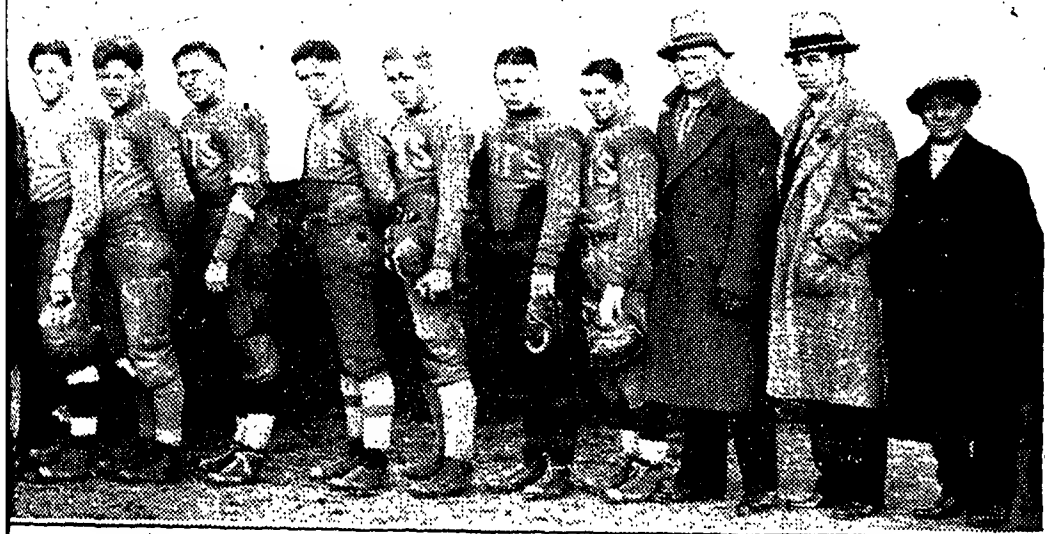

Ass't Sports Editor, Regina Star.

Taking 1928 and the first few months of the present year in review, Saskatchewan has had a successful if not an exceptional season of sports. Picking out the outstanding achievements, for the perusal of the fans, one finds the juniors again in the glare of stardom. Easily the greatest thing ever to fall to the credit of provincial athletics was the bringing of the Dominion junior football championship to the west. Al Ritchie's famed Regina Pats crowning years of struggle on their own part and preceding prairie organizations with a sensational last-minute victory over St. Thomas Tigers, junior champions of Ontario and conquerors of Montreal A.A.A. the club which had dominated the minor division of gridiron battles since the first team of Pats made the journey east to lose in 1925.

And again it was the juniors who made the whole nation sit up and take notice when Howie Milne and his Monarchs captured the Canadian junior hockey title, the previous Winter after a hectic series with Ottawa Gunners, wearers of the Ontario honors. The only reason the football victory was a little superior to the hockey good news, was the fact that Saskatchewan in the ice sport, has been known and will continue to be known as the chief manufacturing centre of all that is clever on skates, the Pats having brought the Canadian title to the West in 1925 under Al Ritchie's guidance.

A feature of athletics in general that can not be overlooked, not only in Saskatchewan, but all over the universe, is the positive fact that people are not so satisfied as formerly in being but onlookers of good, clean, healthy athletics. They are dropping their role as spectators and beginning to realize that participation is much more to be desired. Accordingly the golf courses, the softball diamonds, the bowling alleys, the tennis courts and the ice sheets are crowded with folks eager to get in the swim and the happy result is a healthier world.

There is a certain element that imagines nothing has been accomplished unless a championship is won and then again there are those whose intelligence functions even after the five o'clock whistle. Nevertheless a sports championship is one of the greatest means of advertising and accordingly food for thought for chambers of commerce and other bodies with the welfare of metropolises big and otherwise at heart. "More towns are put on the map by sports achievements than this world dreams of!" and we might add—"especially in Saskatchewan". Pick your own author.

HOCKEY.

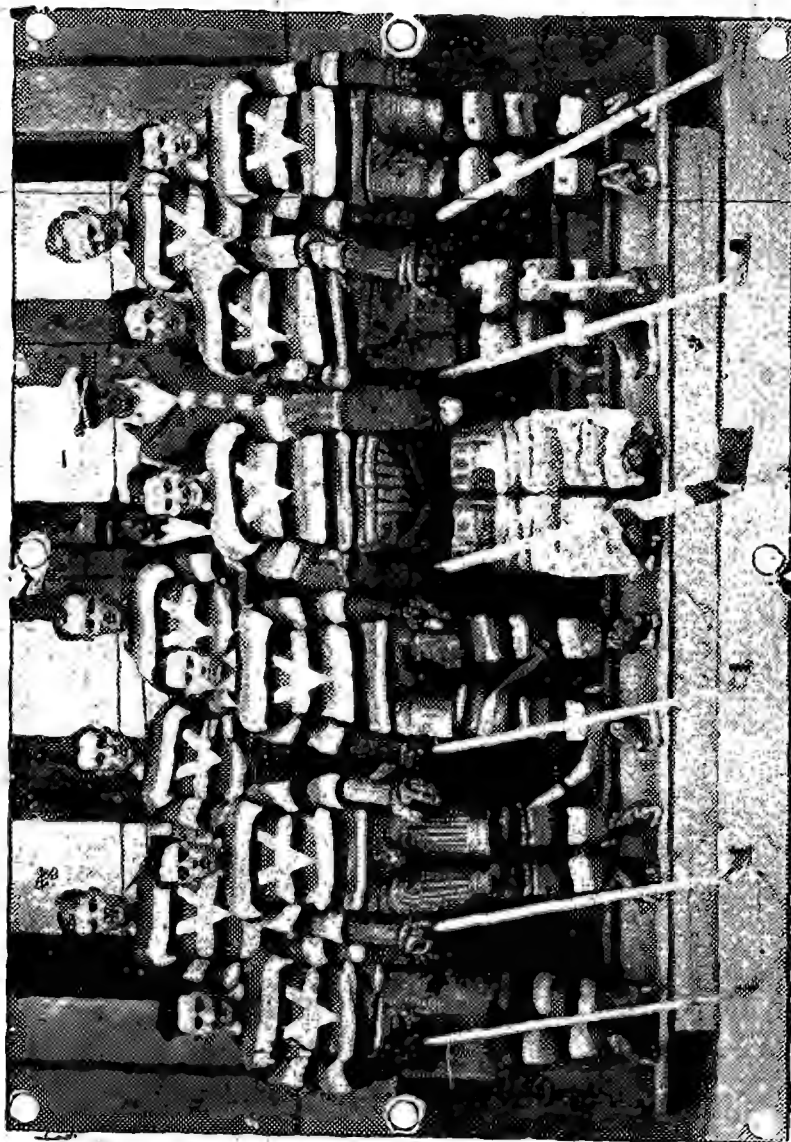

Hockey in Saskatchewan in 1928-29 was and was not a success. The class of hockey provided was good, there is no doubt of that, even tho' neither the provincial junior nor senior champions were good enough to survive the Dominion play-down and bring home the coveted Memorial and Allan cups. Regina Vics, the club which brought the Canadian championship to Saskatchewan way back in the year of 1914, again made a strong bid for the honors this year and came fairly close to registering. Port Arthur, however, whose aspirations in that direction in the past, have met with more success than this province's teams, had the extra spurt and finish to clamp a 5-1 wet blanket on the sextet coached by Howie Milne and indeed had so much ability that St. Francois Xavier, the Quebec champions and Eastern titleholders who had downed Toronto Varsity, took the slim end of a 11-3 score, in the three game series.

But before Vics ever reached the inter-provincial play-off they had so many narrow verdicts to their credit, that even their ardent supporters had visions of a crack in the near future. The southern Saskatchewan senior league provided thrills and thrills galore. Regina Aces, the runners-up, Weyburn, Melville, Yorkton and Moose Jaw, were always in the thick of the battle and only as the play-off dates crept dangerously close, did Moose Jaw and Yorkton cease to be in the running. It was originally planned to have three team play-off, a system that has many enemies in various quarters, but it was thought the easiest solution to the tangle and in order to hurry the declaration of the league champion, was to leave the first four sextets in the play-off.

Vics, however close their victories, deserved all kinds of credit for they had the courage and the stick-to-itiveness to win twelve straight games in order to make a play-off position in the league. Which is a little item worthy of note, don't you think? It was a bitter pill for the previous league winners, Weyburn, who cracked badly when victories meant so much, and Melville, the organization which had commenced the schedule in true Millionaire style, taking rebuffs from no one, had apparently worn themselves out in the efforts and proved easy meat for Aces. It was just a single goal that gave Vics the edge over Ritchie's "Bullets" and the games filled the Regina stadium to overflowing which was a pleasant surprise to players and officials. One thing of which everyone is now convinced is the need of artificial ice. It's pretty hard to judge a hockey team on two and three inches of slush.

The intermediate teams furnished just as much action as the seniors. Saskatoon Wesleys, whom Vics defeated in the north-south senior final, showed the lack of competition during the season and also showed that the Hub city is not the sporting centre it once was, a fault that will be corrected no doubt in a very little while. The Wesleys were bowed under a 14-5 count in a two-game series.

It remained for Moosomin Badgers, those doughty warriors from the Manitoba-Saskatchewan league, who were intermediate champions, to give Vics the scare of a hectic season. On the Moosomin ice the Badgers defeated Vics 2-1 but in the return game in Regina, Vics finished in front 4-2, winning the round by a single goal. And don't forget that Moosomin had their own sweet time winning the intermediate title. This is the reason why the remark was made that the hockey season was and was not a success. Squabbles and more squabbles were injected every now and then, both in senior and junior. Moosomin lost the round to Swift Current Indians for the southern Saskatchewan intermediate honors by 5-4, but due to the Indians' goalkeeper who was declared ineligible by the S.A.H.A. the series was thrown out and the title awarded to Moosomin.

After putting out Moose Jaw Maroons, an intermediate team and having won four out of six play-off games, the decision caused such a furore in the badly-hit town that the current itself stopped absolutely dead. In any case the Badgers were ordered to meet North Battleford, the northern intermediate champs who won the title from Rockhaven. The N. B. sextet had an enviable record during the year, after losing to the Badgers by 2-1 in the first game they dropped the series when the best they could do in the second was hold their opponents to a 1-1 tie. During the complete hockey year, North Battleford won 19, tied four and lost six games. Delisle, 1927-28 provincial champions failed to survive the eliminations.

After Moose Jaw Tigers were put out of the running Sid Dennis and his warriors made a successful tour of the Maritimes following in the footsteps of the Aces who made the trip the year previous.

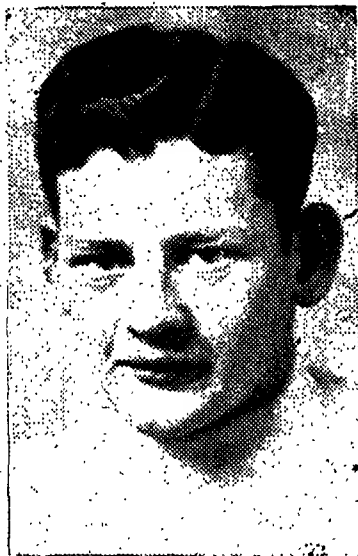

JUNIOR HOCKEY

Regina Pats, coached by Al Ritchie won the provincial championship from Saskatoon Wesleys but only after a sensational two game series.

There are many fans who still think Wesleys would have gone further in the Dominion play-downs. To get where they did, Pats won their league from Regina Argos and Moose Jaw Maroons and then in a series with Weyburn eliminated the southerners with ease. The games between the two teams were marred by the protests of the Weyburn entry against players on the Pats roster and it was simply a case of "in again out again" with some of the Regina players. Eventually the S.A.H.A. decided that the Pats could continue intact but by the time the decision was finally reached most fans were death on the juniors, an unfortunate occurrence after the junior world's championship coming to Saskatchewan the winter before. Most of the lack of harmony could be traced to the disbandment of the Regina Junior Hockey Association, at whose disappearance the league in the Queen City went decidedly flat.

The first game between Wesleys and Pats in the Hub City was as brilliant an exhibition of hockey as one could wish to see and it was only in the last few minutes that the southern winners managed to break even, the battle ending 2-2. The return game in Regina was just as interesting and the well-known fighting spirit of the Irishers put them out in front by 3—1, winning the round by two valuable goals.

Being on provincial championship teams is no new thing to Ab Holt, sterling left-winger of the Regina Pats. Besides starring for the Saskatchewan titleholders in past season, Ab. played for the champion Monarchs the year previous and was with the Pats in '26-'27 when they lost out at Winnipeg.

How the Calgary Canadians ran wild in the second game in Winnipeg after a mediocre performance in Regina when they held the Ritchie players to a 2—2 tie, is history. Perhaps it was the slow natural ice in Regina that held the Canadians down, but in the 'Peg they took the advantage of numerous penalties handed out to the Pats, and won by the one-sided score of 5—0. They met their doom in Winnipeg Elmwoods, who lost out in the Dominion final to Toronto Marlboros.

Before the Pats reached the finals, Frank Jerwa, towering young defense man joined the Vancouver Pros, a sad setback for the Reginans, just as Vics suffered when "Mush" March signed with Chicago.

Doc Crosby's Melville Juveniles won the provincial title by defeating Saskatoon Wesleys 5—2 in a two-game series after a hard battle to reach the finals. To win the southern championship, the young Millionaires trimmed Craik 5—4 in the series, holding their lead of three goals gained in the first game although dropping the second tilt by 3—1.

In the midget section, Saskatoon Wesleys finally came through, defeating Assiniboia youngsters on the round by the decisive score of 17—7. The Hub gladiators were never threatened, taking the first game 8—2.

A remarkable feat that the Wesley club had their seniors, juniors, juveniles and midgets, all in the provincial play-offs.

"RED" CURRIE

FREDDIE BROWN

Here are two of the young huskies who helped the Pats make the St. Thomas Tigers like it. "Red" Currie on the left, who also played with the Roughriders in Hamilton, and Freddie, "Ashpile" Brown, clever young back-fielder and end man. Brown hails from Minnesota and last year was his first in Canadian football. Currie is but 15 years old and one of the best plungers in Canada.

JERRY ERSKINE

GREG GRASSICK

Jerry Erskine on the left and Greg Grassick on the right. Two of the Roughriders who stacked up against the Hamilton Tigers. Grassick is an ex-McGill trikker and Jerry is a former Pat player.

In the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight, did the first championship ever come to Saskatchewan! The East has always dominated the pigskin sport in the Dominion, successfully turning back the assaults of Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg and others, but in 1925 when the Pats went to Montreal and lost by a single point it was just a question of time until the work of the prairie teams was rewarded.

Pats were grouped with Moose Jaw juniors in their own league, and after quenching the Mill City threat, went on to take a sudden-death game from Saskatoon Hilltops right in the northern city. The Regina team looked to be in a bad way at times in the struggle but they eventually won by a comfortable margin. The particular star of the Hilltop squad was "Hub" Dafoe. The brilliant young backfielder playing his last game of amateur sport, saved his team time and again with sensational tackles when a Pat husky had only him to pass. After the game Dafoe left for Oakland, California where he played hockey with the team in that city this past Winter.

JIM DOCTOR

Jim Doctor, hard-hitting lineman of the Pats whose playing was a feature all season. Jim also played in the final game with the Roughriders.

After getting rid of the Hilltops by 17-5 to win the Provincial gonfalon, the Pats took on Winnipeg Argos in Regina and again showed their superiority, coming out on top by 28-1. Earning the right to meet the Eastern winners, the Pats, unlike the Roughriders who had won the Western Canada senior title, had financial difficulties to face which through the generosity of the citizens they finally overcame. For a while it looked as if neither team would go, the seniors being without the services of some of their stars who were unable to make the journey. After consulting the C.R.U., the Dominion football body graciously established a precedent by allowing the juniors to play senior in a final game and then the following week compete in a junior Dominion final. Both Regina squads made the trip. Eddie James, Jim Doctor, Red Currie and Angie Mitchell were the Pats who played for the seniors and then helped carry their first love to victory.

It was unfortunate that the Roughriders were forced to bow to Hamilton Tigers by the lop-sided count of 30-0 in the Mountain city, but they were competing against a super squad, a collection of all-stars that is still considered by experts to be the greatest team ever assembled in Canada. The Roughriders were beaten no worse than other teams in the Big Four League in the East. In fact by point comparisons, the Western representatives would have caused Ottawa Senators to yell "uncle". Still that little matter of 54 points run up by Queen's University in 1923 against the same Regina club, makes 84 digs the West has to overcome for the desired revenge.

Al Ritchie had charge of both teams,

Howie Milne the Roughriders' coach being unable to make the trip.

It was the old fighting spirit of the Pats that brought them through at St. Thomas, against the brilliant Tigers aggregation in the Ontario railroad city. They started out badly, trailing behind 5-0 at half time, but by sheer grit, they overcame their nervousness or whatever it was that caused offsides and fumbles, and proceeded to humble the yellow and black sweated Easterners by an 8-6 score.

lay-off while at Queen's University, came through with the winning touch-down and sent the folks back home wild with joy.

Eddie James, considered the greatest junior football star since the days of Lionel Conacher, played a sensational game as did Red Currie, Mitchell, Doctor and the whole team. The East gave the players full credit and now it is just a question of time until the juniors of 1928 will be the senior champions of 19—?

SOCCER

Judging by the different displays served up by the many teams that contested league and provincial honors last year, soccer is fast heading towards a big revival all over the province; and it cannot be said that any one team had matters all its own way in any competition.

The biggest league in the province, the Regina-Moose Jaw Intercity Amateur Soccer League, resulted in sterling battles being waged between members of the teams representing each city. True, the Leader-Post soccerites annexed the league championship, but much of the credit for their fifth consecutive championship is due to the splendid defensive qualities of Ross, Laing and Lang, the former following up a Dominion Record achieved the previous year, in permitting only three goals to be scored against him in league games, by holding the fort and the Canadian National team to a 1-1 draw when the railroaders should have won by at least three clear goals.

At the end of the league schedule three of the teams were so evenly matched as to establish a new record, a triple tie for championship honors, the Leader-Post winning out in the final game of the play-offs by the comfortable score of 3 goals to 1.

In provincial honors and Connaught Cup games the teams of the northern part of the province revealed a surprising superiority over southern representatives. Bienfait, practically an unknown eleven from the coal district, administered the coup de grace to the strong C.N.R. team, declared by many critics to be the best team in the province.

But such is the alluring nature of the sport. Each unexpected result adds zest to the game and hope never dies in the hearts of even any player belonging to the so-called weaker team.

Since the concluding date of 1928 season quite a host of new talent has settled in the province and new teams have established themselves on the soccer map. The north and Bienfait are confident in declaring that 1929 will again see them at the head of the provincial honors list; while the south expresses pity for the north and busy preparing a place for the championship shield, with special accommodation for the Connaught Cup, emblematic of the Dominion championship.

Alas, the old Leader-Post team is no more. Manager Wilson Harper, manager of the team for many long years, has retired and, in silent tribute, the team retired with him, the old players being united in the opinion that the club could not be the same if the hand of Western Soccer's most efficient guide was lacking at the helm.

In sorting out the different talent it is pleasing to note that the C.P.R., Moose Jaw, has definitely decided to strive, on behalf of the Mill City, for every class of honor; but, in absolute contrast to 1928, when great difficulty was encountered in forming two elevens, four teams will enter the lists and give battle to the best Regina can place in the field.

Towards the end of the season the conquerors of the south will combat the representatives of the north for the provincial shield. This year the match will be played on a selected pitch in the south, much to the delight of Moose Jaw and Regina teams. But the Saskatoon Callies and Sons of England scoff at the idea of ground advantage playing even a minor unimportant part in bringing the trophy either to Moose Jaw or Regina. On top of all comes the cry from the mines, "Watch Bienfait."

Here are a few of the Balmorals basketball team senior provincial champions.

BASKETBALL

Basketball in the province reached the highest peak during the past season that has ever been the lot of Saskatchewan. In Regina Balmorals, the provincial champions, this section of the country had a team worth rooting for and it took a starry aggregation like the Winnipeg Toilers to eliminate them from Dominion contention.

After defeating Moose Jaw Maroons, Moose Jaw Y.M.C.A. and Regina Y.M.C.A. in the inter-city league, Bals went on to Prince Albert where they took such a decisive victory from the northern title-holders that the second battle of the round was forfeited. Although the P.A.'s lost the game by 35—9 they did remarkably well for a city that has taken to the cage game only in the last two years, and yet won the northern honors in their first year of provincial competition. To get as far as they did, the Elks defeated Saskatoon Grads, the Hub City champions 57—55 in the double game series.

The two point difference gives an idea of the torrid battles the games were and the victory planted basketball in Prince Albert with a firmness that ensures a long and thriving life.

The visit of the Toilers to Regina for the inter-provincial series and the right to meet Lethbridge, the Alberta champions, created much interest in the Queen City and the new armories where the games were played were needed to hold the 4000 fans who gathered on succeeding nights. The Manitoba-Thunder Bay champs, the Toilers, won the first game 32—24 and the second 28—21, which gave them the nice margin of 60—45.

Bals will be back next season stronger than ever and with the added advantage of having played together, a fact that meant much to the Toiler quintet.

The outstanding star of the Regina team was Amby "Bus" Haugh, a product of Toronto West End Y.M.C.A. Bus once held the world's record for consecutive free throws. Haugh is the greatest offensive threat ever seen in Saskatchewan. He was not the only star however, the whole team working in close harmony. (Haugh's picture appears on page 200.)

The guarding, of Fritz Sandstrom, Colin Foster and Ken Blair was consistently effective and the forwards, the elongated Doug Bruce, Brix Peebles, Paul McKinnon, "Soup" Campbell, Sid Stephens and "Squeek" Van Vleet all played well. Bruce McIrvine coached the players and moulded them into a real team.

In girls' basketball Moose Jaw provided championship quintette, Davidson Business College of that city, defeating Regina Glasgow Aces for the southern title and blanking Conquest, Northern winners, in the provincial final. The Conquest team duplicated their feat of 1927 in taking the northern flag, beating out Saskatchewan Varsity girls 57—49 on the round.

The game between Moose Jaw and Regina caused plenty of fireworks, the first game ending 14—14 and the second to the College fair ones by 32—28. Aces protested that overtime should not have been played in the second encounter, extra time not being played in the first game. Their protest was disallowed however and the D.B.C. cagers went on into the final and showed their real class.

Claire Ehman of the Aces is one of the best point getters in girls' basketball.

Interscholastic leagues in the province brought out the fact that the hoop sport will always be a large number in athletics on the prairies.

BADMINTON

Badminton is beginning to make its presence felt as witness the large number of entries in the provincial championship play. When the trophies were being handed out, it was all Moose Jaw—all but one, Miss Rene Dupmeier of Regina defeating Mrs. McDougall, also of Regina to win the ladies' singles crown.

Terry O'Rorke of Moose Jaw was the big feature of the tournament, his wonderful racquetting of the bird netting him the men's singles championship and pairing him for the title in the men's doubles and the mixed doubles. Truly a feat worth recording. The ladies' doubles was captured by Mrs. Hedley and Miss Radcliffe, the Moose Jaw ladies defeating Miss Dupmeier and Mrs. McDougall of Regina in the final. O'Rorke and Frank Bailey of Moose Jaw won from their fellow-townsmen Col. Hedley and Wright, in the Men's doubles final. The mixed doubles championship was another Mill City triumph. Miss Radcliffe and Terry O'Rorke defeating Miss Dupmeier and Jack Martin. To win the men's singles title, O'Rorke played his usual brilliant game to win from Bailey. Bob Robinson of Saskatoon won the veteran's singles with a nice display against his brother citizen, Mr. Donnell.

The games were played in the new Regina armories and attracted a large crowd of enthusiastic fans, who were delighted with the spaciousness and excellent courts.

TENNIS

In tennis, Walter Martin the young Regina star is making a name for himself in the Dominion. Besides winning the Western Canada singles title at Moose Jaw, Walter won the eastern inter-collegiate for Toronto University.

Mrs. Feinstein and Mrs. Parker are Western Canada ladies' doubles champions, both from Regina and Mis Dorothy McKenke of Swift Current and A. J. Wickens of Moose Jaw won the Western mixed doubles. The junior star, Shaw of Regina, Western champion, is likely to be one of the big stars of the Dominion soon. The English Davis cup team on tour, gave a clever exhibition in Moose Jaw.

GOLF

Saskatoon is the home of the ladies' golf champion, Mrs. Yule winning the honors and Phil Morse also of Saskatoon taking the men's amateur crown, Tommy Ross of the Wascana Country Club in Regina holds the pro title, defeating Jimmy Rimmer of Jasper Park, one up. The visit of Archie Compson the great English golfer who defeated Walter Hagen, was a feature of the 1928 season, he and farther afield, but some of them have class nevertheless. Jackie Lewis and Vic Skerlton of Regina are evenly-matched bantamweights and "Kid" Lees of Yorkton, who claims the Western Canada welterweight crown, received honorable mention in the late Tex Rickard's list.

BOXING AND WRESTLING

Trifunov repeated his Canadian successes, winning the title for the 7th time at Port Arthur in April of '29, taking the bantam crown by default. Johnny Rahio, another Queen City grappler took the featherweight championship, his first title.

TRACK AND FIELD

Track and field in the province needs more attention. Harold Wright, Regina product, cleaned up at the Labor Day sports for the provincial titles last Summer, winning the 100 yards, 220, 440, running broadjump and hop, step and jump. Jack La Pointe also of Regina won the pole vault and J. Walberg of Saskatoon the one mile and five mile runs. In the 120 yards high hurdles, Dan Dojack of Regina showed the way and also in the 220 yards low hurdles. Millard Mooney took the 880 yards. The feat of Ethel Catherwood of Saskatoon in winning at the Olympic games, was the high light.

The interscholastic provincial meet in Saskatoon in May '28 was a big success and brought out the fact that many future champs will come from the student numbers. Prince Albert was the surprise of the competition, coach Myatt turning out some fine athletes.

WATER SPORT

Water sports are always popular and the regattas put on by the various clubs attract record crowds and entries. Don Mantle of the Regina Boat Club and Edna Harvey hold the 100 yard swimming titles. Rowing is the big feature at the Regina Boat Club where 16 crews were entered in the first meet. Moose Jaw is always well up in the paddling. The R.B. C. sent two crews to Winnipeg for the International regatta but they failed to win their events.

BASEBALL

Baseball was not up for provincial competition but there were some good teams in action in Saskatchewan. Semi-pro teams played exhibition games to give the fans the odd treat and Tournament ball continued to be popular. Senior leagues look to be in for better seasons this year although the inroads softball has made will continue to affect the size of the crowds and the number of teams. This year most softball leagues are adopting the inseam ball which will tend to speed up the game and cause less injuries.

Every office, store and barber-shop seems to be entered in the competition and the lack of diamonds is the big handicap. One thing softball will do is play havoc with the future senior baseball players. The question is—where will they come from? Still perhaps it's only a boom and the newer sport will revert to an ordinary position in a few years. And then again perhaps it won't!

LACROSSE

Lacrosse, Canada's National game, is slipping badly in this province, a fate the game never deserved. The absence of senior leagues and the scarcity of junior ones, while the United States is taking to the sport in a hurry, is cause for concern. It's bad business taking it on the chin at your own game right at the Olympics, for the whole world to see.

BOWLING

In the provincial ten-pin bowling tournament at Moose Jaw in March of this year, the competition was exceptionally keen, but most of it came from the Moose Jaw teams, themselves. In the team open event, Maple Leaf Cafe of Moose Jaw took first prize, and in the closed teams, Sterling Motors of Moose Jaw. Open doubles went to Badger-Longpre of Moose Jaw, open singles to Moulding, Moose Jaw, open aggregate Badger, Moose Jaw, closed singles Hodgkinson, Moose Jaw, closed doubles, Tian-Bergl, Regina and closed aggregate to Hartree of Regina. A five pin tourney with Regina and Moose Jaw teams entered was held in conjunction.

LAWN-BOWLING

In the provincial lawn-bowling tournament, which started in Regina, ended in Saskatoon in 1928, the Mayfair Club of the Hub City won the Leader Trophy. The Hutton trophy, secondary event was played off in Winnipeg and the Hudson's Bay primary in Saskatoon. Blacklock kept the single title in Regina. The visit of the New Zealand bowlers was a pleasant event and they were much impressed with Saskatchewan.

CURLING

The brilliant showing of the Dick Ross rink in the Dominion final in Toronto provided the main note in curling. Although the Regina quartet bowed to the Hudson rink of Winnipeg they put up a real display and it was some consolation to see the Westerners come through. The provincial bonspiel at the Regina Club rink in the Queen City was a mammoth affair and considered the greatest in years. Rinks from all over Saskatchewan were there in abundance and when the meet was over, spiels continued to crop up in the various cities and in towns which kept the enthusiasts on the jump.

Curling clubs organizing, holding bonspiels, meeting other towns, and their general activities filled much space on the sport pages.

CRICKET

Cricket throughout the province went ahead in stellar fashion and it was due mostly to hard luck that the Saskatchewan representatives at the Western Canada tourney lost out in Winnipeg in 1928. British Columbia took the championship, Manitoba and this province ending in a deadlock for second place. Players on the Saskatchewan eleven came from Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, Netherhill and Regina.

Moose Jaw Sons of England won the provincial title by playing in nice form consistently.

"For All of Your Days I Thank You"

The present century has given birth to no happier idea than that of "Mother's Day"—a delightful innovation, originating with our friends south of the border. How does one phrase a suitable greeting to the heroines of the day? There are two apt lines in "Peer Gynt" that always kindle the writer:

"For all of your days I thank you,

For beatings and lullabies."

Perhaps they will serve. Those who would avoid kicking themselves for remembering the day too late, should ring May 5th in red on their calendars.
